PREFACE.

PREFATORY remarks on this publication are perhaps scarcely requisite. By placing the narrations of similar circumstances, as related by the several Evangelists, in opposite columns, their deviations or additions are more readily observed, and more easily compared. Thus arranged, obscure passages are frequently illustrated by the suggestion of a seemingly indifferent circumstance, and the deficiencies of one Evangelist are supplied by the more ample detail of another: by which means A FULL AND CONNECTED HISTORY OF OUR SAVIOUR is framed; and the distinct phraseology and idiom of each of these sacred writers are more conspicuously displayed. It may also thus be observed, that St. John's gospel, as appears from his numerous additions and omissions, was intended as a sequel to the others and written after them; and that St. Mark, as is proved by his insertion of new matter, did not merely epitomize the gospel of St. Matthew.

The most serious objection to this mode of distributing the gospel history is, that by contrasting the minute particulars of a general relation of circumstances, a partial disagreement or seeming inconsistency is in various instances observed. These difficulties are generally explained and obviated by the Notes at the end of this work. Some may possibly have escaped the notice of the Editor; others he has left in the state they were found, from a fear of attempting to illustrate, by conjecture, the records of the most interesting and important work ever delivered to mankind. Many sufficient reasons might be advanced why these occur, but as he finds it impossible to enter into an investigation comprehending so great an extent of inquiry, within the limits which he has prescribed for this preface, he contents himself with quoting the judgment of the learned prelate, whose plan he professes to follow. “The result of my thoughts and inquiries is, that every genuine proposition in scripture, whether doctrinal or historical, contains a truth when it is rightly understood; that the Evangelists conceived alike of the facts related by them, but sometimes place them in different lights, and make a selection from different circumstances accompanying them, and that their seeming variations would instantly vanish were the history known to us in its precise order and in all its circumstances.”* A testimony, also, to the genuineness of the gospel history arises from trifling incongruities which are observed by means of a Harmony; namely, that the Evangelists did not write in concert. “Truth,” said a late writer, “like honesty, often neglects appearances: hypocrisy and imposture are always guarded. And, as from these seeming discordancies in their accounts, we may conclude they did not write in concert; so, from their agreeing in the principal and most material facts, we may infer that they wrote after the truth.”†

The duration of our Saviour’s ministry, whether it extended to three years or longer, or only one year, has been a question of much controversy;‡ the former opinion is adopted by Newcome, and is implicitly followed in this Harmony, as is also his division of time.

Several trifling alterations, unnecessary to be enumerated, have been adopted in the disposition of the text, and it is hoped, generally, to advantage.

are most surely believed among us,

Section 2. St. John's Preface.

Chap. I.

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

2 The same was in the beginning with God.

3 All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made.

4 In him was life, and the life was the light of men.

5 And the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not.

6 ¶ There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

7 The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe.

8 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.

9 That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.

11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

12 But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name:

13 Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

14 And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

Chap. I.

15 ¶ John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me : for he was before me.

16 And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.

17 For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

18 No man hath seen God at any time : the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.

Section 3. The Conception of Elisabeth.

Chap. I.

5 There was, in the days of Herod the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the course of Abia : and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth.

6 And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord, blameless.

7 And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years.

8 " And it came to pass, that while he executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course, 9 According to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord.

10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying without, at the time of incense.

11 And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of the altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.

16 And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

17 And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

18 And Zacharias said unto the angel, Whereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years.

19 And the angel answering, said unto him, I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings.

20 And behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass, that, as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.<sup>a</sup>

24 And after those days his wife Elisabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying,

25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me, in the days wherein he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.

of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

29 And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.

31 And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David:

33 And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

34 Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?

35 And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

36 And behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her who was called barren.

37 For with God nothing shall be impossible.

Section 5. Mary visits Elisabeth.

39 And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill-country with haste, into a city of Judea; <sup>a</sup>

40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

41 And it came to pass that when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb: and Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost.

42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

43 And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And blessed is she that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.

46 And Mary said, My soul doth magnify the Lord,

47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour.

48 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden: for behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.

50 And his mercy is on them that fear him, from generation to generation.

51 He hath shewed strength with his arm: he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

52 He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.

53 He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.

54 He hath holpen his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy;

58 And her neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her.

59 And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.

60 And his mother answered and said, Not so; but he shall be called John.

23 He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias.

thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again.

8 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered and said unto him, How can these things be?

10 Jesus answered and said unto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness.

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe, if I tell you of heavenly things?

even so must the Son of man be lifted up :

15 That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

16 ¶ For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

17 For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world ; but that the world through him might be saved.

18 ¶ He that believeth on him is not condemned : but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved.

21 But he that doeth truth, cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou barest witness, behold the same baptizeth, and all men come to him.

27 John answered and said, A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.

28 Ye yourselves bear me witness, that I said, I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before him.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom : but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice ; this my joy therefore is fulfilled.

2 Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.

3 In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole ?

7 The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man when the water is troubled to put me into the pool : but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

8 Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked : and on the same day was the sabbath.

10 ¶ The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath-day : it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed and walk ?

13 And he that was healed wist not who it was : for Jesus had conveyed himself away, a multitude being in that place.

14 Afterwards Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole : sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath-day.

the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.

19 ¶ Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do : for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise.

20 For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth : and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

21 For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them ; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son :

23 That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father which hath sent him.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation ; but is passed from death unto life.

25 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God : and they that hear shall live.

26 For as the Father hath life in himself ; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself ;

27 And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man.

30 I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me.

31 If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true.

32 There is another that beareth witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me is true.

33 Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the truth.

34 But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say, that ye might be saved.

35 He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.

36 ¶ But I have greater witness than that of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.

37 And the Father himself which hath sent me hath borne witness of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor seen his shape.

43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not. If another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive.

44 How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?

26 Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

27 Which of you, by taking thought, can add one cubit unto his stature?

28 And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin;

29 And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Where-withal shall we be clothed?

42 But woe unto you Pharisees! for ye tithe mint, and rue, and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

43 Woe unto you Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets.

44 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them.

45 ¶ Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master, thus saying, thou reproachest us also.

46 And he said, Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.

47 Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

48 Truly ye bear witness, that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.

49 Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute:

51 From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple : verily I say unto you, It shall be required of this generation.

52 Woe unto you, lawyers ! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge : ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in, ye hindered.

53 And as he said these things unto them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things ;

54 Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

IN the mean time when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

2 For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed ; neither hid, that shall not be known.

4 And I say unto you, my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do.

5 But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which, after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him.

6 Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?

7 But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows.

8 Also I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God.

9 But he that denieth me before men, shall be denied before the angels of God.

10 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but unto him that blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven.

11 And when they bring you unto the synagogues, and unto magistrates, and powers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall say:

15 And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.

16 And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully:

17 And he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?

18 And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits, and my goods.

19 And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.

20 But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?

21 So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.

22 ¶ And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for the body, what ye shall put on.

23 The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.

neither be ye of doubtful mind.

30 For all these things do the nations of the world seek after :
and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things.

31 ¶ But rather seek ye the 38 And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants.

39 And this know, that if the good-man of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.

40 Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed ; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see : and your ears, for they hear.

17 For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them ; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

13 And he said unto them, Know ye not this parable ? and how then will ye know all parables ?

18 ¶ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.

11 Now the parable is this :

From the beginning of the second Passover.

MATTHEW. Chap. XIII.	MARK. Chap. IV.	LUKE. Chap. VIII.	JOHN.
		The seed is the word of God.
	14 ¶ The sower soweth the word.
This is he which received seed by the way-side.	15 And these are they by the way-side, where the word is sown; but when they have heard,	12 Those by the way-side, are they that hear;
19 When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one,	Satan cometh immediately,	then cometh the devil and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart.	and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.	and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe, and be saved.
20 But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it;	16 And these are they likewise which are sown on stonyground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness;	13 They on the rock are they, which when they hear, receive the word with joy;
21 Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.	17 And have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.	and these have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.
22 He also that received seed among the thorns, is he that heareth the word,	18 And these are they which are sown among thorns such as hear the word,	14 And that which fell among thorns are they, which when they have heard, heareth the word, & understandeth it ,	hear the word, and receive it , and	keep it , and which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hun- dred-fold, some sixty, some thirty.	bring forth fruit, some thirty-fold, some sixty and some an hundred.	bring forth fruit   with patience.

	22 For there is nothing hid, which shall not be mani- fested ; neither was any thing kept se- cret but that it should come abroad.	17 For nothing is secret that shall not be made manifest ; neither any thing hid that shall not be known and come abroad.

and bind them in bun-

26 ¶ And he said,
So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground,

27 And should sleep,
and rise night and day,
and the seed should
spring and grow up,
he knoweth not how.

28 For the earth
bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear.

31 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying,	30 ¶ And he said, Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?
The kingdom of heaven	31 It
is like to a grain of mustard-seed, which a man took and sowed in his field:	is like a grain of mustard-seed, which when it is sown in the earth,
32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds:	is less than all the seeds that be in the earth.
but, when it is grown,	32 But when 'it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches;
it is the greatest among herbs,	so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.
and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.
33 ¶ Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till the whole was leavened.

19 But when they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak : for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak.

20 For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.

21 And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child : and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death.

22 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake : but he that endureth to the end shall be saved.

26 Fear them not therefore : for there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed ; and hid, that shall not be known.

Section 66. Jesus's Discourse with the Pharisees &amp; Scribes, with the Multitude and his Disciples about eating with unwashed hands.
THEN came to Jesus * <sup>a</sup> scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem.	THEN came together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, which came from Jerusalem, 2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled, that is to say, with unwashen, hands, they found fault. 3 For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. 4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and pots, brasen vessels, and of tables.

2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.	5 Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands?
3 But he answered and said unto them,	6 He answered and said unto them,
7 Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying,	Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written,
8 This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me.	This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me.
9 But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.	7 Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.
	8 For laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washing of pots and cups: and many other such like things ye do.
3 Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God, by your tradition?	9 & he said unto them, Full well ye reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition.

Honour thy father and mother; and he that curseth father or mother, let him die the death.	10 For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother; and, Who-so curseth father or mother, let him die the death.
5 But ye say, Who-soever shall say to his father or his mother It is	11 But ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother It is Corban, that is to say, a gift,

6 And honour not his father or his mother,	12 And ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father or his mother;

Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition.	13 Making the word of God of none effect through your tradition, which ye have delivered: and many such like things do ye.
10 ¶ And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear,	14 ¶ And when he had called all the people unto him , he said unto them, Harken unto me every one of you , and understand:

15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned ?

16 Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.

17 If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.

25 Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he whom they seek to kill?

26 But lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto him: do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ?

26 Howbeit, we know this man whence he is: but when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.

28 Then cried Jesus in the temple, as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.

29 But I know him; for I am from him, and he hath sent me.

30 Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.

31 And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done?

32 The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

33 ¶ Then said Jesus unto them, Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me.

36 What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

37 In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood, and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink.

38 He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water.

33 (But this spake he of the spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified.)

40 ¶ Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, Of a truth this is the Prophet.

41 Others said, This is the Christ. But some said, Shall Christ come out of Galilee?

42 Hath not the scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?

43 So there was a division among the people, because of him.

44 And some of them would have taken him; but no man laid hands on him.

45 ¶ Then came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me.

19 Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father ? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor my Father : if ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also.

20 These words spake Jesus in the treasury, as he taught in the temple : and no man laid hands on him ; for his hour was not yet come.

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins : whither I go ye cannot come.

22 Then said the Jews, Will he kill himself ? because he saith, Whither I go, ye cannot come.

23 And he said unto them, Ye are from beneath ; I am from above : ye are of this world ; I am not of this world.

24 I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins : for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.

25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus said unto them, Even the same that I said unto you from the beginning.

26 I have many things to say and to judge of you: but he that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.

27 They understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

28 Then said Jesus unto them, When ye have lifted up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself; but as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things.

29 And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him.

30 As he spake these words many believed on him.

31 ¶ Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed;

32 And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

33 ¶ They answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free?

34 Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin.

38 I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father.

39 They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

40 But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

41 Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one Father, even God.

42 Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me.

43 Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.

44 Ye are of your father the devil; and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar; and the father of it.

48 ¶ Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?

49 Jesus answered, I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me.

50 And I seek not mine own glory: there is one that seeketh and judgeth.

51 Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death.

52 Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets, and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he shall never taste of death.

12 Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man is not of God, because he keepeth not the sabbath-day. Others said, How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? And there was a division among them.

17 They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, that hath opened thine eyes? He said, He is a prophet.

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise : we know that this man is a sinner.

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

Chap. X.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6 This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

13 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14 I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.

15 As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

16 And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

17 Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father.

15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

17 And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!

18 I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee,

3 Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed.

4 I am resolved what to do, that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.

5 So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord?

7 Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said an hundred measures of wheat. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and write fourscore.

13 No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

14 ¶ And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.

24 And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence.

23 ¶ And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone : but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

25 He that loveth his life shall lose it ; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

26 If any man serve me, let him follow me ; and where I am, there shall also my servant be : if any man serve me, him will my Father honour.

27 Now is my soul troubled ; and what shall I say ? Father, save me from this hour : but for this cause came I unto this hour.

28 Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

29 The people therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered : others said, An angel spake to him.

30 Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.

31 Now is the judgment of this world : now shall the prince of this world be cast out.

32 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.

33 This he said, signifying what death he should die.

41 These things said Esaias when he saw his glory, and spake of him.

42 ¶ Nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue:

7 But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth ; and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.

8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy.

9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage.

10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all, as many as they found, both bad, and good : and the wedding was furnished with guests.

11 ¶ And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment :

12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither, not having a wedding garment ? And he was speechless.

13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness : there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.

for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come. for ye know not when the time is.

43 But know
this, that if the good man of the house had known in what watch the thief would come,
he would have watched, & would not have suffered his house to be broken up.

44 Therefore be ye also ready : for
in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man com-
eth.

34 *For the Son of man is as a man
taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter
to watch.*

45 Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?

46 Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing.

47 Verily I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods.

48 But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming;

49 And shall begin to smite his fellow servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken;

50 The Lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of,

51 And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

35 Watch ye therefore: (for ye know not when the master of the house cometh; at even, or at midnight, or at the cock crowing, or in the morning:)

THEN shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

2 And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.

3 They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them :

4 But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

5 While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

6 And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh ; go ye out to meet him.

7 Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.

8 And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil ; for our lamps are gone out.

9 But the wise answered, saying, Not so ; lest there be not enough for us and you : but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

11 Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

12 But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.

13 Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.

14 ¶ For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods:

16 Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.

17 And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.

18 But he that had received one, went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.

19 After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

20 And so he that had received five talents came, and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

23 His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

24 Then he which had received the one talent came, and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed:

25 And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.

26 His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

27 Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

28 Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

29 For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not, shall be taken away, even that which he hath.

LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.

3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.

4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 ¶ Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?

6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.

7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also; and from henceforth ye know him and have seen him.

8 ¶ Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

10 Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father, that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.

12 ¶ Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

13 And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 ¶ If ye love me, keep my commandments.

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;

17 Even the spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

18 I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you.

19 Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.

20 At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

24 He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.

25 These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

26 But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.

27 ¶ Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I.

29 And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe.

30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.

31 But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do.

Section 129. Jesus resumes his Discourse to his Disciples.

31 Arise, let us go hence.

C. XV.

I AM the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.

2 Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

3 Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me, ye can do nothing.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.

7 If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.

9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

10 If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 ¶ This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

16 Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.

18 ¶ If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 If ye were of the world the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

20 Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they 21 But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me.

22 If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin : but now they have no cloke for their sin.

23 He that hateth me hateth my Father also.

24 If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin : but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father.

25 But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated me without a cause.

26 ¶ But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me :

27 And ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

C. XVI.

THESE things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended.

2 They shall put you out of the synagogues : yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.

3 And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

5 ¶ But now I go my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, sorrow hath filled your heart.

7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth; It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you.

8 And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment:

9 Of sin, because they believe not on me;

10 Of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more;

11 Of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.

12 I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.

13 Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come.

14 He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shew it unto you.

17 Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again a little while, and ye shall see me: and, Because I go to the Father?

18 They said, therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we cannot tell what he saith.

19 Now Jesus<sup>c</sup> knew that<sup>r</sup> they were desirous to ask him,<sup>f</sup> and said unto them, Do ye enquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

23 And in that day ye shall ask me nothing. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

25 These things have I spoken unto you in proverbs: but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father.

26 At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you:

27 For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

28 I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 ¶ His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no proverb.

30 Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.

31 Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe?

32 Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own, and shall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.

33 These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.

THESE words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee:

2 As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.

3 And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.

5 And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 ¶ I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the scripture might be fulfilled.

13 And now come I to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 ¶ I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 ¶ Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.

is the third day since these things were done.

22 Yea, and certain women also of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulchre;

23 And when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, which said that he was alive.

24 And certain of them which were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said; but him they saw not.

25 Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken!

26 Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And beginning at Moses, and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself.

28 And they drew nigh unto the village whither they went: and he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is far spent. And he went in to tarry with them. <sup>a</sup>

30 And it came to pass as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight.

Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entered into a ship immediately ; and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

5 Then Jesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.

6 And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he was naked,) and did cast himself into the sea.

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship; (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring of the fish which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three : and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 ¶ Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou ? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

15 ¶ So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these ? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord ; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me ? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord ; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me ? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me ? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things ; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

18 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou girdest thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest : but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not.

19 This spake he, signifying by what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me.

20 Then Peter turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 Peter seeing him, saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me.

23 Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?

24 ¶ This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things: and we know that his testimony is true.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

Page 3. John i. 15. The transposition of this verse after the 18th, according to Wakefield and Markland, renders the passage more clear and connected.

Luke i. 5. Of the course of Abia. The priesthood was divided into twenty-four courses; (See 1 Chron. xxiv. 10.) and over each course was placed a priest, hence denominated the high-priest.

4. Luke i. 9. His lot was to burn incense. Each course in seven divisions served for the week, and each division was appointed by lot, to its peculiar service.

Luke i. 15. He shall be filled with the Holy Ghost. This obsolete term in many instances casts an obscurity over the scriptures, and it may now be sufficient, generally to observe, its proper translation from the Greek, "the Holy Spirit," is more easily understood.

5. Luke i. 22. And when he came out, &c. By the vision is meant, the appearance of God, by an angel to the priest, to reveal his will. This was wont to take place at the time of offering the incense.—Hence the people readily concluded, by his delay and his seeming speechless, that he had been thus favoured.—Hammond.

9. Luke i. 69. Hath raised up an horn of salvation. The word horn is used in the scriptures emblematically to denote strength or power; Lament. ii. 3, 17; Psalms lxxv. 10; also honour and triumph, as when the horn "is exalted;" Psalm lxxxix. 24.—From the union of these it signifies the power of a king or kingdom, Revel. xiii. 1. This seems the import of the word in this place.—The house of David being the regal family, and Saviour implying ruler and prince, (See Obad. 21.) the horn of salvation in the house of David, denotes the kingdom of Christ.

10. Matt. i. 19. Not willing to make her a public example. The punishment ordained by the Jewish law in this case, was to be stoned to death, Deut. xxii: to prevent which, Joseph, from motives of humanity, intended to give up the betrothment, or divorce her before the marriage was consummated. This might be done, by giving her a bill of divorcement, in the presence of some mutual friends, and one or two of the Rabbins, without specifying to them the reasons for his conduct.—Willan.

Page 11. Matt. i. 22. That it might be fulfilled. (Wakefield renders it "Was so done as to be fulfilled.") Where there is a direct prophecy in the Old Testament; the event did not take place for the mere purpose of fulfilling it; but God pre-determined a fit event, and foretold it by his prophets.—Newcome.

Luke ii. 1. All the world should be taxed. This mode of expression was not peculiar to St. Luke, for the sacred writers of the Old Testament often give Judea the name of the whole earth. (Jos. xi. 23. Jer. i. 18, &c.) which the seventy most commonly render by the habitable world. Isaiah xii. 5.—Beausobre and Lenfant.

13. Matt. i. Luke iii. The genealogy. The genealogy by Luke is inverted, that it may be more easily compared with the other.—The difference observed in the genealogies of the two Evangelists may be thus accounted for. Matthew writing for the Jews, who reckoned their descent by the male line, gave that of Joseph the supposed father of Christ; Luke, composing his history for the use of the Gentiles, gave the genealogy on the side of the mother, neglecting that of Joseph which would to them be of little importance. The Talmud calls Mary, Heli's daughter, Joseph being nearest of kin married her, (the only child and heiress of Heli.) As such he had a right to the inheritance of his father-in-law. (See Numbers xxxvi. 7, 9.) Joseph is therefore styled the son of Heli. This is termed the legal or civil genealogy.—Newcome, &c.

It is indeed objected, that it was never known or customary among the Jews to deduce the descent through the female line: But this is a mistake, (1 Chron. ii. 22.) Jair is reckoned among the posterity of Judah. But because the grandfather of Jair, v. 21, had married the daughter of Machir, of a noble house in the tribe of Manasseh, ib. vii. 14, therefore the same Jair is called, (Numb. xxxii. 41.) the son of Manasseh. So also (Ezra ii. 61.) we find a family entitled the children of Barzillai, because one of their ancestors took a wife of Barzillai the Gileadite.—Townson.

Some are of opinion, that Luke carried up the pedigree from Abraham to Adam, to intimate the right of the Gentiles to the Messiah.

17.—18.—Luke ii. 22, 24.—See Leviticus xii. 1—6. Numb. xviii. 15, 16.

18. Luke ii. 25. Waiting for the consolation of Israel. The usual phrase for the coming of the Messiah, taken from Isaiah xlix. 13. lii. 9. lxvi. 13. Jerem. xxxi. 13, &c.

19. Luke ii. 36. Anna a prophetess. The proper definition of a prophet may be collected from Numb. xii. 6. "If there be a prophet amongst you, I, the Lord will make myself known to him in a vision, and will speak to him in a dream." That women were thus favoured, as well as men, with divine communications, appears in many instances. Miriam and Aaron said, Hath the Lord indeed only spoken by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us? Numb. xii. 2. Deborah the wife of Lapidoth is styled a prophetess, and acted as an inspired judge. Judges iv. 4, 5. Compare Judges, chap. ii. 18. and Judith viii. 31. Philip the Evangelist of Cæsarea had four daughters, virgins, who prophesied, Acts xxi. 9. Ezekiel, xiii. 17, reproves false prophetesses, or diviners, who "prophesied out of their own hearts."—Willan. See also Lowth's Isaiah, c. xl. 9, and his note thereon.

Page 19. Matt. ii. 2. We have seen his star in the East. The ancients believed that the appearance of an unusual star portended considerable changes in empires, or the birth of a great prince.

The motion of this luminary was undoubtedly miraculous, varying from the regular revolutions of the heavenly bodies, and directing the wise men by its course to the very house at Bethlehem, over which it settled.

The Jews, and even Samaritans, had for a long time expected the coming of a prince in Judea, who should rule the world. This was supported by the prophecies of Daniel and others, had been inculcated by some heathen writers, propagated by the Jews during their captivity (Esther iii. 8. viii. 17.) under the Persian monarchy, and corroborated by the destruction of the kingdoms of Syria and Egypt.

The peculiar appearance of this star, thus coinciding with these their long established opinions and expectations; whilst they unitedly influenced the wise men in their search, exhibit an interesting evidence to the nativity of the Messiah.—Grotius, &c.

20. Matt. ii. 6. And thou Bethlehem, &c. (See Micah v. 2—4.

Matt. ii. 11. They presented unto him gifts. In the East, no person of rank is approached without a present. Notice of this custom occurs in different places of the scriptures; (1 Sam. xxv. 18, 27. 1 Kings x. 2, &c.) and in this instance the gift consisting of the most valuable productions of their country, constituted a present proper to the occasion.

22. Matt. ii. 23. He shall be called a Nazarene. This does not refer to any particular passage in the prophets, but to the general idea given of the Messiah in all the prophets; who speak of him, as one who should be hated, reviled, persecuted, and afflicted; and the Hebrew word, from which Nazareth is derived, signifies this, as well as to be separated or sequestered from other men; the town of Nazareth itself was both in name and reality a despised place.—Hunt.

26. Matt. iii. 4. Mark i. 6. His raiment of Camel's hair, &c. There was nothing of excessive rigour, but only of simplicity, in John's mode of living. Locusts are very commonly eaten in the East, and allowed to be eaten by the Jewish law, Levit. xi. 22. Honey is rather a delicacy, yet plentiful in Palestine from wild bees. The clothing of Camel's hair is very common to this day in the same country.—Harmer.

Matt. iii. 7. Pharisees and Sadducees.

The Pharisees existed as a sect for about 150 years before the coming of our Saviour. Contrary to the Sadducees, they adopted the Scriptures (i. e. the Old Testament) generally; yet in their dependance for explication upon their traditional accounts, they encumbered religion with frivolous ordinances and ceremonies; and paid more attention to the modes of their own instituting, than to an holy and acceptable conduct before God. Thus originated the self-righteousness, with that degree of affected sanctity, and external purity, so frequently reproved by our Saviour. They held a belief in the immortality of the soul, the existence of angels, and spirits, Acts xxiii. 8; they likewise admitted a kind of transmigration of the souls of good men, which might pass from one body to another; whilst those of wicked men were condemned to dwell for ever in prisons of darkness. It was in consequence of these principles that some of the Pharisees said, that Jesus Christ was John the Baptist, or Elias, or some of the old prophets, Matt. xvi. 14. that is, that the soul of one of these great men had passed into the body of our Saviour. They believed also the resurrection of the dead, and admitted of all the consequences of it against the Sadducees, who rejected it. Matt. xxii. 23. Acts xxiii. 8. They wore large rolls of parchment, upon their foreheads, and wrists, and hems of their garments, called phylacteries, which were thus named because they reminded the Jews to keep the law, or because they were supposed to preserve them from harm. Ex. xiii. 9. Numbers xvi. 38, 39. On these were written certain words of the law; (vid. Exodus xiii. 9. 16. Deut. vi. 8. xi. 18.) They wore the fringes and borders, at the corners and hems of their garments, broader than the other Jews, as a badge of distinction and greater observance of the law: for which ostentation our Saviour reprehends them. Matt. xxiii. 5.

The Sadducees, acknowledged as the most ancient sect among the Jews, derived their name from their teacher Sadoc.—They rejected all the traditional doctrines, and confined their belief to the five books of Moses; and, as strict adherents to the Mosaic institutions, interpreted these books in the most literal sense. In support of this opinion, it is observed, that our Saviour makes use of no scripture against them, but passages taken out of the Pentateuch. They denied the resurrection of the dead, and the existence of angels, and of the soul; yet admitted that of a God, who, they say, merely governs the world through his providence, and in support of this government extends not the punishment of sin, or the reward of virtue, beyond the grave. Hence, like some philosophers, they professed to pursue virtue merely for itself, divested of the expectations of reward: and as they acknowledged neither punishments nor recompenses in another world, so they were inexorable in chastising transgressors. They observed the law themselves, and caused it to be observed by others, with the utmost rigour. They were peculiarly abstemious and austere, living apart in small communities, in retired villages or groves. Michaelis intimates that monkery is supposed to have taken its rise from them.

Page 27. Luke iii. 12. Then came also Publicans. The occupation of publicans (who farmed and collected the public taxes) was a most invidious employment, noted for extortion and rapacity, and was to the Jews peculiarly odious and detestable, as they had been so long free, and had so indignantly supported the Roman yoke.—Harwood.

Zaccheus remains on scriptural record as probably the sole and notable exception to their general character. See Luke xix. 1, &c.

28. Luke iii. 16. Baptize you with fire. Fire is frequently in Scripture alluded to as the means whereby purification is experienced. See Zech. xiii. 9. Malachi iii. 2. Isaiah vi. 6. 1 Cor. iii. 13 and 15.

33. John i. 23. I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness. This idea is taken from the practice of eastern monarchs, who, whenever they entered upon an expedition, or took a journey, especially through desert and unpractised countries, sent harbingers before them to prepare all things for their passage. See Luke iii. 5.—Notes of Lowth on Isaiah.

Page 35. John i. 46. Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? See note on page 22. Matt. ii. 23.

36. John ii. 4. Woman, what have I to do with thee? Cyrus addresses the queen of the Armenians with a similar appellation, and Sophocles represents the maids speaking in the same terms to their mistresses. This shews that such a style was not inconsistent with the greatest exactness of behaviour. The latter part is expressed after the mode of the Hebrew phraseology; and though it may appear from this passage as an interrogation implying censure, it seems plain from Mary's order to the servants, that she did not understand him as rejecting her implied request.—Turner.
38. John ii. 14. Oxen, and sheep, and doves. These were sold for sacrifices. The money changers were people who gave the current money of Judea to foreigners, in exchange for the money of those countries from which they came.—Harwood.
40. John iii. 14. And as Moses lifted up, &c. See Numbers xxi. 8, 9.
46. John iv. 20. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain. The Samaritans built a temple in opposition to that at Jerusalem on mount Gerizim, ascribing greater antiquity to it than to that of Solomon; alleging, that Joshua erected the altar over which the temple was built on mount Gerizim; whereas in Deut. xxvii. 4. it is said to have been erected on mount Ebal. Prideaux accuses them from this instance of corrupting the text.
47. John iv. 27. And marvelled that he talked with the woman. It was unusual with the Jews to converse with women in public, and it might be an increased astonishment to the disciples to perceive that the woman was a Samaritan, whom the Jews treated with a degree of abhorrence.
51. Luke iv. 16, &c. The Jewish teachers out of reverence stood up when the scriptures were read, and sat down when they preached or delivered practical instruction to the audience; thus our Lord sat down and taught the people out of the ship; so also he sat down before he delivered his divine sermon on the mount.—Harwood.
53. Matt. iv. 18. Luke v. 1. The Jews gave the name of sea to any considerable collection of waters, whether sweet or salt. Thus the sea of Galilee was likewise called the lake of Gennesareth, the lake of Galilee, and sea of Tiberias. The lake, according to Josephus, is about four leagues in length, and two in breadth. The river Jordan runs through it, and afterwards discharges itself into the Red sea.—Newcome, &c. Capernaum was situated on its north side.
56. Mark i. 23. A man with an unclean spirit. In the New Testament where any circumstances are added respecting the dæmoniacs, they are generally such as shew that there was something preternatural in the distemper; for these disordered persons agreed in one story, and paid homage to Christ and his apostles, which is not to be expected from madmen, of whom some would have worshipped, and others would have reviled Christ, according to the various humour and behaviour observable in such persons.—Jortin.
61. Matt. viii. 3. Touched him, viz. the leper. To shew whence the power proceeded. Our Lord thus contracted legal uncleanness, as Elisha did when he stretched himself on a dead body. 2 Kings iv. 34. But miraculous works were exempt from ritual precepts.—Grotius.

Page 63. Mark ii. 4. Luke v. 19. They uncovered the roof, &c. The most satisfactory interpretation of this passage may be obtained from Shaw, who acquaints us that "The houses throughout the east are low, having generally a ground floor only, or one upper story, and flat roofed, the roof being covered with a strong coat of plaister of terras. They are built round a paved court, into which, the entrance from the street is through a gateway or passage room, furnished with benches, and sufficiently large to be used in receiving visits, or transacting business. The stairs which lead to the roof are never placed on the outside of the house in the street, but usually in the gateway or passage-room to the court, sometimes at the entrance within the court. This court is called in Arabic, the middle of the house, and answers to 'the midst,' in Luke. It is customary to fix cords from the parapet walls (Deut. xxii. 8.) of the flat roofs across this court, and upon them to expand a veil or covering, as a shelter from the heat. In this area probably our Saviour taught. The paralytic was brought upon the roof by making a way through the crowd to the stairs in the gateway, or by the terraces of the adjoining houses. They rolled back the veil, and let the sick man down over the parapet wall of the roof into the area or court of the house before Jesus."

64. Matt. ix. 3. The Scribes assumed their name and profession upwards of 800 years before Christ. Their general employment was in transcribing books, and in reading and expounding the law to the people. Their variety of employments required various qualifications.—Most authors reduce them to two general classes, civil and ecclesiastical. Of the civil scribes there were various degrees in office, from the common scrivener to the principal secretary of the state. Learned men from any other tribes at large might be admitted into this class. The ecclesiastical scribes were the learned men of the nation, descendants from Levi. They expounded the law and taught it to the people, (see Matt. xvii. 10. Mark xii. 35.) and in the New Testament are termed doctors or teachers of the law, and lawyers. They were the preaching clergy among the Jews, and whilst the priests attended the sacrifices, they instructed the people. It appears, however, that what they taught chiefly related to the traditions of the elders, that it was about external, carnal, and trivial rites; and that they were very litigious.

Matt. ix. 6. Take up thy bed and walk. Their beds consisted of a mattress laid on the floor, and over this a sheet; in winter a carpet, &c.—Harmer.

68. John v. 16. The physicians among the Jews were generally priests, who would not administer any remedies on a sabbath day, except in cases where life was immediately endangered; or to perform the operation of circumcision. See John vii. 22.—Willan.

70. John v. 35. He was a burning and a shining light. This character of John the Baptist is perfectly conformable to the mode of expression adopted by the Jews. It was usual with them to call any person celebrated for knowledge, a candle. Thus they say that Shuah, the father-in-law of Judah, (Gen. xxxviii. 2.) was the candle or light of the place where he lived, because he was one of the most famous men in the city, enlightening their eyes; hence they called a Rabbín the candle of the law, and the lamp of light.
Lightfoot.

72. Luke vi. 2. Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath? The Pharisees deemed the rubbing the ears of the corn a profanation of the sabbath, because they were not allowed by their law to prepare victuals on the sabbath day.

Page 73. Mark ii. 26. Did eat the shew bread. See 1 Sam. xxi. 6. Exod. xxix. 32. Levit. viii. 31.

Matt. xii. 5. The priests in the temple profane the sabbath and are blameless. Because they lighted thereon the fire, slew the sacrifices, &c. whereby they would have profaned the sabbath had not these things been enjoined by God. Accordingly the Jews were wont to say, that there is no sabbath in the temple. See Numb. xxviii. 9.—Beausobre and Lenfant.

76. Mark iii. 6. The Herodians. The leading principle of the Herodians consisted in an endeavour to conform the Jewish religion to the interests of Herod the Great and his successors, and reconcile it to the alien empire of Rome, whose authority the Jews in general were unwilling to acknowledge. This might be the leaven of Herod. Mark viii. 15. See also Mark xii. 13—18.—Willan.

79. Matt. x. 3. Mark iii. 18. Luke vi. 16. Thaddeus and Judas in the opinion of Pearce, and Lebbeus, of Grotius, are names of similar signification.

Matt. x. 4. Luke vi. 16. Canaanite and Zelotes. Canaanite in this place does not denote the origin of Simon from Canaan, but is a Hebrew surname, which Luke renders Zelotes, i. e. a man of fervent zeal.—Grotius.

80. Matt. v. 3. Blessed, &c. The primitive Christians caused their children to commit this sermon to memory.—Harwood.

81. Matt. v. 13. But if the salt have lost its savour. Maundrell in his journey tells us, that “In the valley of salt near Gebul, and about four hours journey from Aleppo, there is a small precipice occasioned by the continual taking away of the salt. I broke a piece of that which was exposed to sun, rain, and air, though it had the sparks and particles of salt, yet it had perfectly lost its savour. The inner part which was connected to the rock, retained its savour, as I found by proof.” It is likewise probable that in the preparation of fossil alkali, or of common salt, or of rock salt, after exposure to rains, the extraneous matter that remained, as sand, mud, &c. may be here alluded to, as fit only to be trodden under foot.

82. Matt. v. 18. One jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass. Jot is the Hebrew letter י (Jod,) a very small letter, which the Jews frequently use to express a small precept of the law. The tittle was with the Hebrews the slight mark at the angle, or difference in form, distinguishing the different Hebrew letters as ר (Resh) ד (Daleth) &c.—Lamy. Grotius.

Matt. v. 22. But I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council; but whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire. Christ pursues the analogy between the punishments inflicted by the Jewish courts, and the punishments of a future life, yet not in the common application of three Jewish courts; one of three Judges, the next of twenty-three, and the third the great Sanhedrine, of seventy-two, for the court of three Judges had no power to take away life. But the analogy is thus. Whoever shews causeless anger, shall be in danger of the judgment, or of a punishment similar to the capital one imposed by the lesser court of twenty-three members. Who calls his brother vain or worthless (such is the signification of Raca), shall incur a punishment analogous to that of stoning inflicted by the great court, or council of seventy-two. Who violently rails at his brother, shall be subject to a most grievous punishment, comparable to that of the Canaanites, and afterwards to the Israelites, burning their children alive at Tophet, in the valley of Hinnom, near Jerusalem, in honour to their deity Moloch. 2 Kings xxiii. 10.

In this valley the Angel of the Lord is said to have destroyed the 185,000 of the host of Sennacherib, the king of Assyria. See 2 Kings xix. 35.—The prophecies of Jerémiah in the name of the Lord, against the worship of the idolatrous Jews, (See Jer. vii. 31. xix. 6.) were likewise here fulfilled by the massacre of a considerable number of them, when Jerusalem was taken by the Babylonish armies. From these and other similar instances of God's vengeance at this place, the Jews were accustomed metaphorically to express the fate of the damned, by the appellation of Gehenna, (or hell fire) in allusion to the valley of Hinnom.—Le Clerc, Light-foot, and Grotius.

Page 85. Matt. v. 47. And if ye salute your brethren only, &c. The Jews, it should seem, would not address their usual form of salutation, Peace be with you, to either heathens or publicans.—Harmer.

87. Matt. vi. 7. Use not vain repetitions. The idolatrous worshippers of Baal called on the name of Baal, from morning even until noon, saying, Baal, hear us. 1 Kings xviii. 26. Thus also the devotees of Diana, all with one voice about the space of two hours, cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians. Acts xix. 34. In imitation of such examples, the Rabbins had laid down these maxims: Every one that multiplies prayer shall be heard.—The prayer which is long, shall not return empty. Acting therefore on these principles, there was certainly much danger to be apprehended of unmeaning prolixity, and insincere repetitions. Christ condemned both this conduct in others, and warned his disciples against practices so truly pernicious to true religion.—Burder.

88. John vi. 16. When ye fast, &c. The Jews in their fasts begin the observance of them in the evening after sunset, and remain without eating till the same hour of the next day, or till the rising of the stars. On the great day of expiation when more strictly obliged to fast, they continue so for twenty-eight hours. Men are obliged to fast from the age of full thirteen, and women from the age of full eleven years. Children from the age of seven years fast in proportion to their strength. The Pharisees fasted more frequently and with greater rigour and exactness than the generality of Jews.

89. Matt. vi. 30. The grass of the field, &c. The consumption of fuel in Arabia and Judea is for their ovens, which they heat with grass, that withers speedily in so hot a climate. Shaw tells us in his travels, that myrtle, rosemary, and other plants are made use of in Barbary to heat their ovens.

94. Luke vi. 48. And when the flood arose, &c. Though the returns of the rain in winter are not extremely frequent, yet when it does rain, the water pours down with great violence for three or four days and nights together, enough to drown the whole country. Such violent rains in so hilly a country as Judea, must occasion inundations very dangerous to buildings within their reach, by washing the soil from under them, and occasioning their fall.

Page 95. Section 37. Matt. viii. Luke vii. It has been doubted by some whether this account of the centurion's servant, related with some difference by the two Evangelists, refers to the same person. The principal objection is that Matthew's centurion comes in person, and Luke's centurion sends the elders of the Jews.

Le Clerc supports it, by adducing the following Jewish proverbs: The messenger of any man is as, or equal to, the man himself. The ambassador of a king is as, or equal to, the king. See Matt. xi. 23. xxvii. 19, and observe well Mark x. 35, compared with Matt. xx. 20. In John iv. 1, Jesus is said to baptize, when he baptized by his disciples. See also John xix. 1. He likewise observes that in Gen. xvi. 13. xviii. 1. Exodus xx. 1. God is said to perform what he did, by his angels. Considering the sameness of the scene, the persons, the transactions, we may conclude with Grotius, that this miracle is one and the same; related in general by Matthew, and with greater accuracy by Luke.—Newcome.

97. Luke vii. 12. And much people, &c. It was a Jewish custom, that all who met a corpse carried to the grave, attended it, and joined in the lamentation.—Josephus.

Luke vii. 14. And touched the bier. The people of the East bury their dead without coffins; but they carry them to the grave on a bier which is shaped like one.—Harmer.

100. Matt. xi. 13. For all the prophets and the law prophesied. Luke xvi. 16, may explain this passage of Matthew, "The law " and the prophets were until John—since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it." By this expression our Lord marks the beginning of a new age or dispensation, which is usually denominated the kingdom of heaven, or the kingdom of the Messiah. Thus Sanhedrim 991, "all the " prophets only prophesy to the days of the Messiah, but concerning the days of that age to come, the eye seeth not."—Willan.

Matt. xi. 16. It is like unto children, &c. It was the custom of children among the Jews, in their sports to imitate what they saw done by others on great occasions, and particularly the customs in festivities, wherein the musician playing a tune upon his instrument, the company danced to his pipe. So also in funerals, wherein the women by singing the mournful song, the rest followed lamenting and beating their breasts. These things the children acted and personated in the streets in play, and the rest not following their leader gave occasion to this speech; "We have piped unto you and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you and ye have not lamented."—Burder.

102. Matt. xi. 23. Shalt be brought down to hell. This is a scripture phrase used to denote an utter destruction, a total overthrow. See Isaiah xiv. 13, 15. This prophecy hath been so exactly fulfilled in the destruction of Capernaum, that according to the relation of travellers there are not now above eight cottages where it stood.—Beausobre and Lenfant.

103. Luke vii. 38. And stood at his feet, behind him. This is not intelligible without adverting to the posture in which the ancients took their meals. They placed themselves along a couch on their sides, supported their heads with one arm bent at the elbow and resting on the couch: with the other they took their food, and were supported at the back by cushions. Their feet, of course, were accessible to one who came behind the couch.—Wakefield.

Page 104. Luke vii. 44. Thou gavest me no water. The washing the feet before meals is frequently mentioned in the Old Testament, Gen. xliii. 24. 1 Sam. xxv. 41. so 1 Tim. v. 10. It was necessary, as the ancients only wore loose sandals, and at meals laid their feet upon the couch. This practice, together with kissing the hand as a token of respect, the feet probably to indicate greater humility; and anointing the head, are still retained amongst the Arabs and in the East. The person who presents himself to welcome a stranger, and wash his feet, is the master of the family. Perhaps this Pharisee, for fear of offending his brethren, had omitted the usual tokens of respect on the reception of a guest.—Harmer. Shaw.

106. Mark iii. 21. He is beside himself. Doddridge thinks the construction of the Greek is more properly “thrown into an ecstasy,” as Mark ii. 12. vi. 51. Acts ii. 7, 12; and translates it here “is transported too far.” His friends feared that his present zeal and fervency of spirit might impair his health. The words “is mad or beside himself or themselves,” may be equally referred, or annexed (and undoubtedly with greater propriety applied) to the term, multitude.

110. Matt. xii. 40. Three days and three nights. It is of great importance to observe, that the Easterns reckoned any part of a day of twenty-four hours for a whole day, and say, a thing was done after three or seven days, if it was done on the third or seventh day from that last mentioned. Their days began in the evening. (Compare 1 Kings xx. 29. 2 Chron. x. v. 12. and Luke ii. 21.) And as the Hebrews had no term corresponding in signification to the natural day of twenty-four hours, they use night and day, or day and night for it; so that to say, a thing happened after three days and three nights, was the same as to say, it happened after three days or on the third day. Compare Est. iv. 16. with v. 1. Gen. vii. 4. 12. Exod. xxii. 18. and xxx. iv. 28.—Doddridge.

115. Luke xi. 51. Zacharias, which perished between the altar, and the temple. A space of nine feet was left between the body of the temple and the altar. This was an asylum affording protection to criminals. See 1 Kings i. 51. and ii. 28, 30.—Willan.

117. Luke xii. 22, &c. Luke has here, as in other places, recapitulated several precepts given, by our Lord to his followers, according to Matthew, at a very different period. Matt. x. 17 to 35, and vi. 24 to 34, pages 155 and 89 of this work. Some commentators have laboured much to reconcile this difference, but it was surely proper, that our Lord should repeat the doctrines, before delivered in Galilee, to his hearers in Judea, who had hitherto not been favoured with his public ministry.—Willan.

118. Luke xii. 28. Grass which is to-day in the field. See note on page 89.

Luke xii. 31. And all these things shall be added. See 1 Kings iii. 5—13.

Luke xii. 35. Let your loins be girded about. The garments among the Easterns were flowing and loose. They who travel on foot are obliged to fasten their garments at a greater height from their feet than they do at other times. This is what is understood by girding up their loins. Chardin observes that all persons that travel on foot always gather up their vest, by which they walk more commodiously, having the leg and knee unburthened and disembarassed by the vest, which is not the case when it hangs over them. After this manner he supposes the Israelites were prepared for their going out of Egypt, when they eat the first passover. Exod. xii. ii.—Harmer.

Page 120. Luke xii. 54. A cloud rise out of the west. Shaw says that the westerly winds in the Holy Land are still generally attended with rain, but that the easterly winds are usually dry.—Harmer. See 1 Kings xviii. 43, 44.

Luke xii. 55. The south wind blow. Le Brun tells us, that there blew when he was at Rama, a south-east wind, which coming from the desert beyond Jordan, caused a great heat, and that it continued some days.—Harmer.

121. Section 48. The slaughter of the Galileans, and the destruction of those on whom the tower of Siloam fell, are retorted by our Saviour on the uncharitable Jews with this prophetic addition, "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." This seems an evident allusion (supported by the parable that follows of the fig-tree,) to the destruction of Jerusalem which occurred not long after, in a manner totally similar. A considerable number were slain by the ruins of the walls and towers; the temple was every where polluted by the blood of its priests; many, who came from far to attend the passover, fell before their sacrifices; and when Titus took the city, a multitude of dead bodies lay round the altar.

131. Matt. xiii. 31. Like to a grain of mustard seed, &c. Willan thinks this plant the Sinapi Erucoides of Linnæus.

Matt. xiii. 32. Becometh a tree. In the soil and climate of Palestine, the Hebrew authors speak largely of its size. Simon had a mustard tree capable of being ascended by climbing. Another mustard tree had three branches, which furnished a shade for potters to work under. Jerusalem Talmud Pol. Syn.—Newcome.

135. Matt. viii. 22. Let the dead bury their dead. The sense conveyed in the text is, Turn not aside to temporal affairs, but leave them to those solely attached to them.—Grotius.

Luke ix. 62. Put his hand to the plough and looking back. Hesiod's rule to the plougher, is, that he should not look about on his companions, but make a straight furrow.—Newcome.

136. Matt. viii. 26. A great calm. The wind will sometimes cease on a sudden; but the sea will not be smooth till some time after, therefore the miracle was most evident.—Jortin.

137. Section 51. The reader on perusing this section must observe a considerable degree of inconsistency in relation, on comparing the three Evangelists; yet however striking, on mere inspection, such incongruities may appear, it is presumed the following remarks will tend to remove the difficulty. Matthew says, The country of the Gergesenes, Mark and Luke, Gadarenes. Gadara, according to Josephus, was the metropolis of Peræa, or of the region beyond Jordan over against Galilee ; Gergesa was an adjoining town ; hence the district named from either of these, included the two cities.

In Matthew mention is made of two Dæmoniacs, in Mark and Luke of one only. Here the maxim of Le Clerc is true, " He who relates many things comprehends the few or minute, whilst he who relates the few only, denies not the relation of the more." A reason for this difference is usually assigned from Augustin, that one of the Dæmoniacs had been a person of greater respectability, and that the country was in greater anxiety respecting him. Farmer and Wetstein are nearly of the same opinion. And supposing this observation in general true, these Dæmoniacs from natural causes, or a divine impulse, as it is probable they were sometimes God's instruments for the promotion of the gospel, might now unite in seeking relief from Jesus, and yet might live apart at other times. We may collect one reason from the gospels themselves, why Mark and Luke mention only one Dæmoniac ; because one only being grateful for this miracle, his cure was only recorded by the two Evangelists, who mention this gratitude ; and who are more intent on inculcating the moral, than in magnifying our Lord's power. Mark says, the Dæmoniac met him coming out of the tombs, Luke, out of the city. The proper translation is, he was a man of, or belonging to the city, and is a passage similar in construction with John i. 45 ; and thus one is supplementary to the other to this effect, that, He was a man of, or belonging to the city, and coming out of the tombs, met him.—Newcome, &c.

Page 137. Matt. viii. 28. Out of the tombs. Shaw observes, that among the Moors, the graves of the principal citizens have cupolas or vaulted chambers, of four or more yards square, built over them ; and that they are frequently open, and afford an occasional shelter from the inclemency of the weather.

139. Matt. viii. 31, &c. A punitive miracle may be allowed in the destruction of swine, the keeping of which by Jews was a breach of the law ; and by Gentiles, within the confines of Palestine, and in the midst of the Jews, a snare to the Jewish people and a contempt of their religion.—Newcome.

143. Matt. ix. 15. Children of the bride-chamber. Great mirth and cheerfulness accompanied the celebration of nuptials among the Jews. The children of the bride-chamber were the friends and acquaintances of the parties, and assisted in these rejoicings.

144. Matt. ix. 17. Put new wine into old bottles. The vessels used by the ancients for preserving wine, &c. were made of skins sewed together. Hence the putting of new wine, when approaching to fermentation, into old bottles, would burst them more readily. See Josh. ix. 4 and 13.—They are now used in Spain, and called Borrachas.

145. Matt. ix. 18. My daughter is even now dead. According to Matthew, Jairus thought his daughter to be actually dead. According to Mark and Luke, she was only at the point of death. Perhaps the father did not know certainly whether she was dead or not ; but having heard that Jesus had raised from the dead, the son of the widow at Nain, he might have no doubt of his power to raise even his daughter from the dead.—Priestley.

Matt. ix. 18. Come and lay thy hand upon her. This was an ancient ceremony practised by the prophets, which they joined with the prayers they made for any person. See Numb. xxvii. 18. Matt. xix. 13. Jairus desires Jesus to come and pray for his daughter, not doubting, but that as he was a great prophet, God would hear his requests. See and compare Gen. xx. 7.—Beausobre and Lenfant.

Page 147. Matt. ix. 23. And saw the minstrels and the people making a noise. Observed the musicians who customarily attended funerals, and the noisy lamentations of the multitude. When it was supposed Josephus was slain, great lamentations were made, and many people hired pipers, who led the way in these lamentations.—Newcome.

Chardin says that in the East the concourse of people, where persons lie dead, is incredible. Every body runs thither, the poor and the rich; and the former more especially make a strange noise.—Harmer.

151. Mark vi. 3. Is not this the carpenter? Justin Martyr in his dialogues with Trypho, expressly says that Christ assisted his supposed father in his trade of a carpenter, and his townsmen, in this instance, address him to that purport. Amongst the Jews, all fathers were enjoined to teach their children a trade; and their most distinguished Rabbins exercised one.

Grotius. Whitby.

154. Mark x. 14. Shake off the dust of your feet. This action expressed the greatest abhorrence and final renunciation of all intercourse. It originated primarily from the Jewish idea, that the dust of Gentiles polluted them, even if brought into Judea. See Acts xiii. 51. xviii. 6.—Willan.

155. Matt. x. 27. What ye hear in the ear, that preach ye upon the house tops. In addition to note on page 63, on the construction of houses in Judea, to clearly comprehend the above passage, the following remarks are added. The terrace on the top is as much frequented as any part of the house. On this, as the season favours, they walk, they eat, they sleep, they transact business, (1 Sam. ix. 25.) and they perform their devotions, Acts x. 9. The house is built with a court within, into which chiefly the windows open; those that open to the street are so obstructed with lattice work, that no one either without or within can be seen through them. Whenever therefore any thing is to be seen or to be heard in the streets, any public spectacle, or any alarm of a public nature, every one immediately goes to the house top to satisfy his curiosity. In the same manner, when any one had occasion to make any thing public, the readiest and most effectual way of doing it was to proclaim it from the house tops to the people in the streets.—Note from Lowth's Isaiah.

168. Matt. xiv. 26. Walking on the sea. A power ascribed to God only. See Job ix. 8. The Egyptian hieroglyphic, to denote an impossibility, was two feet walking on water.—Doddridge.

176. Mark vii. 2. Eat bread with defiled, that is to say, with unwashen hands. The Pharisees and Scribes did not eat their food with unclean or unwashen hands, because they considered it as sanctified by prayer and thanksgiving before they partook of it. As an instance of this Pharisaical strictness, we are told, upon the authority of the Jewish Talmuds, that Rab. Akiba, being confined in prison with only a small allowance of water, when a part of it was casually spilt, chose rather to die of thirst than omit the ceremony of washing his hands.—Pearce. Lightfoot.

Mark vii. 3. Holding the tradition of the Elders. Besides the written law or pentateuch, the Jews had what they termed the oral law. This was said to have been communicated to Moses on Mount Sinai, at the same time with the other, but not put in writing. It consisted of various ordinances respecting their religious rites, &c. and formed, according to the Rabbins, a sequel or supplement to the written law. They taught farther, that it was delivered by Moses to Joshua, and by him to the elders of the people, from whom the prophets derived it. After Malachi it was preserved by the members of the Sanhedrim, or the council of seventy. Some learned Rabbins at length collected all the traditional ordinances and histories; composing out of them the Targums and the Mishna, which were published at different times between the birth of our Lord and the year 300. To these the Gemara was added some time afterwards. They have since also been largely commented upon; the Jews considering them of almost equal authority with the holy scriptures. Our Lord, by frequently condemning these traditions as absurd in themselves and contradictory to the real law, shews how little claim they have to be thought of divine original, and proves them to be indeed “the ordinances of men.”—Willan.

To these books, as the custom and opinions of a nation must always be best illustrated by its own writers, Dr. Willan makes frequent references; and from these writings he has enriched his History of the Ministry of Jesus Christ, with a selection of many valuable notes not given by former writers.

Page 178. Mark vii. 11. It is Corban. Corban is the usual name for an offering, gift, &c. All gifts to God were held most sacred by the Jews; hence the word Corban became a solemn and binding form of obligation or prohibition, to say, a thing shall be, as to any particular purpose, as if it was devoted to God. “Let it be Corban, as a gift devoted to God, wherein I may be profitable to thee,” signifies I bind myself as solemnly not to give, as if my wealth was devoted to God. The Pharisees seem to have encouraged these rash vows which interfered with the offices of humanity and natural affection. A redemption from the obligation under some particular circumstances might be purchased for fifty shekels. See Levit. xxvii. 2, 3.—Lightfoot.

Mark vii. 16. If any man have ears to hear let him hear. Our Lord, to distinguish such whose understandings were exercised “to discern the things of the spirit” from the unthinking multitude, calls them, those who have ears to hear. He that hath ears to hear, says he, let him hear. The same expression is used in the Apocalypse, a book of prophecies. And it deserves to be attended to, that Jesus Christ never employs these words in the introduction or conclusion of any plain moral instruction, but always after some parable, or prophetic declaration figuratively expressed. See Matt. xi. 15. xiii. 9. Luke viii. 8. Revel. ii. 7, 11, 17, 29.—Campbell.

179. Matt. xv. 15. This parable. Campbell and Newcome in their translations of the New Testament, render it “this saying.” The Greek word (παραβολη) signifying parable, may with propriety be rendered a proverb, a moral maxim, a forcible sentence, as well as a comparison.

Page 180. Matt. xv. 22. A woman of Canaan. Mark vii. 26. A Syro-phœnician. The Canaanites and Phœnicians, according to Bochart, were the same; though the seven nations in Judea, before the conquest of Joshua, were descended from Canaan, yet the Canaanites were frequently enumerated as one of these nations.—Deut. vii. 1. Joshua ix. 1. By which is meant, Canaan with his first born, Sidon, Genes. x. 15, occupied the tract about Sidon and Tyre.—Lightfoot. Phœnicia being comprehended in Syria, accounts for the distinction Syro-Phœnician.—Pliny.

181. Matt. xv. 26. Cast it to dogs. This most contemptuous language the Jews generally applied to the Gentiles. Our Saviour in verse 24, applies the term lost sheep to the Jewish nation, and adopts their expression in his address to the woman, most probably as a trial for her faith, as the verses following seem to indicate.

183. Matt. xv. 30. Maimed. The creation of a new limb is an astonishing evidence of the miraculous power of our Saviour.—Newcome.

That this is the proper application, may be proved from Mark ix. 43, and Matt. xviii. 8. Where the word halt in that passage, and maimed in this, are expressed by the same Greek word (κυλλος).

185. Matt. xv. 39. Magdala. A place on the Eastern side of the lake, from which it is probable Mary was called Magdalene, that is, of Magdala.—Newcome.

Matt. xv. 39. Mark viii. 10. Cellarius and Lightfoot think that Dalmanutha and Magdala were neighbouring towns, and from the latitude of the two passages, no inconsistency can be attached to the two Evangelists.

190. Matt. xvi. 18. The gates of hell shall not prevail against it. More properly the gates of Hades. "The gates of Hades" is not used to express the power of heresy or schism, sin or satan, but the state of death; the place or receptacle of the dead into which souls departed enter, or the entrance into that state. Hence death is, in the language of the ancients, the entrance or gate into Hades. The words are a promise that the Christian church shall endure for ever, through every affliction and persecution, (Acts v. 39.) or that even death shall not prevail against the members of the church of Christ, but that they shall enjoy here in prospect, and hereafter in its certain accomplishment, a happy resurrection.—Grotius.

191. Matt. xvi. 21. Elders, among the Hebrews, were magistrates, heads, or rulers of the people. Vid. Exod. iii. 16. Ezra x. 7, 8. Deut. xxvii. 1. Numb. xi. 16, &c. Some think it probable, that in causes ecclesiastical, the court was made up of the high priest, and of the chief priests, or heads of the four and twenty courses only; and that of matters purely temporal, the supreme magistrate, with the princes, elders, and scribes, (who were the doctors of the law) either by himself, or his deputy, took cognizance. Ezra x. 14. And that where any one was accused of crimes relating to religion and state, both the judges, in each of these faculties, sat to hear the cause. So at the trial of our blessed Lord, Joseph of Arimathea, a rich man, and a counsellor, (probably one of the seventy elders) was one of them who sat as judges, but did not join in the sentence of condemnation. Luke xxiii. 51.

Page 191. Matt. xvi. 21, &c. &c. To reconcile the apparent inconsistencies between the three Evangelists, in the latter part of this, and parallel verses, little more is necessary than to refer to the note on Matt. xii. 40, p. 110, and to introduce some few additional remarks. Having shewn in it that the Jews calculated any part of the day for, or as the whole day of twenty-four hours, it remains to shew that the third day and after three days, in some instances, imply the same duration of time. In the Old Testament we find in Deut. xiv. 28, "after three years," yet, in xxvi. 12, the third year is the year of tithing. Thus 1 Sam. xx. 12, compared with verse 19; and in 2 Chron. x. 5, "Come again unto me after three days," yet, in verse 12, they came again on the third day. Esther orders the Jews, "Fast ye for me, and neither eat nor drink three days, night or day. I also and my maidens will fast likewise, and so will I go in unto the king." Ch. iv. 16; and in chap. v. 1, we are expressly told that on the third day she went in unto the king. From the New Testament it may be sufficient to adduce the following quotation, Matt. xxvii. 63, 64, "Saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, after three days I will rise again, command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day," &c.—Whitby, &c.

192. Matt. xvi. 23. Get thee behind me, Satan. This is expressed in the brevity of a Hebrew phrase; the word Satan imports, an adversary. See 2 Sam. xix. 22.

194. Matt. xvii. 1, &c. &c. Matthew and Mark begin the section in reference to time, after six days, and Luke says, in about eight days. It is easily accounted for: Matthew and Mark allow six entire days between Peter's reproof and the transfiguration, whilst Luke in his account comprehends them both, and includes the portions of the two days as whole days.

197. Matt. xvii. 10. Elias must first come? This persuasion of the Jews was grounded upon Malachi iv. 5.

203. Matt. xvii. 24. Tribute Money. Every Jew above twenty years of age, annually paid half a shekel (equal to about one shilling and three pence English) to the service of the temple.—Exod. xxx. 13, 14. Nehem. x. 32.

207. Mark ix. 49. Every sacrifice shall be salted. In allusion to Levit. ii. 13.

208. Mark ix. 50. Have salt in yourselves. Salt from its peculiar usefulness among the Jews, who inhabited a hot climate, in preserving food from hasty corruption, was an emblem of virtue and knowledge, by which the mind is purified. See Coloss. iv. 6.—Newcome.

Matt. xviii. 10. Their angels do always behold the face of my father. By those who saw the king's face, are denoted, in the Jewish idiom, the most eminent and distinguished personages of a court; as if he had said, Treat not the meanest christians with neglect or disdain; for I assure you the most exalted angels are their guardians and ministers.—Harwood.

211. Luke x. 4. Salute no man by the way. The mission on which the disciples of Christ were sent, was so important, that they were required to use the greatest dispatch, and to avoid those things which might retard them, especially if they were merely of a ceremonious nature. Had they been allowed, in the present instance, to give and receive the common salutations, their progress might have been considerably impeded. The following short extract from Niebuhr's Travels gives some satisfaction on this point. "The Arabs of Yemen, especially the Highlanders, often stop strangers to ask, Whence they came? And whither they are going? These questions are suggested by mere curiosity." This representation of the matter certainly clears from the appearance of incivility, a precept by which Christ designed only to teach his servants a suitable deportment.—Burder.

The instructions of Elisha to Gehazi, when on the mission to the Shunammite, are of similar import. "Gird up thy loins, take my staff in thy hand, and go thy way; if thou meet any man salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again." 2 Kings iv. 29

Page 213. John vii. 2. The Jews' feast of Tabernacles. The feast of Tabernacles was instituted in memory of the Jewish nation having dwelt in tents in the wilderness; and the Jews all dwelt in tents or booths at the celebration of it. See Lev. xxiii. 39, 42, 43. Nehem. viii. 14, 17. It was especially observed with uncommon and profuse rejoicing.

215. John vii. 27. But when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is. See Hebrews, chap. vii. 1, 3.

216. John vii. 37. In the last day, that great day of the feast. The last day grew into such high esteem with the nation, because on the seven preceding days they held that sacrifices were offered not so much for themselves as for the whole world. They offered in the course of them seventy bullocks for the seventy nations of the world; but the eighth was wholly on their own behalf.—It was a separate solemnity for Israel alone.—They had their solemn offering of water; the reason of which is this: At the passover the Jews offered an omer to obtain from God his blessing upon the harvest; at Pentecost, their first fruits, to request his blessing on the fruits of the trees; and at the feast of tabernacles they offered water to God, partly referring to the water from the rock in the wilderness, (1 Corinth. x. 4.) but chiefly to solicit the blessing of rain on the approaching seed-time. These waters they drew out of Siloah, and brought them into the temple with the sound of the trumpet and with great rejoicing. Christ, alluding to their customs, proclaims, "If any man thirst, let him come unto me." He takes, as is very usual with him, the present occasion of the water brought from Siloah, to summon them to himself as the true fountain. John iv. 14.

Lightfoot. Hammond.

John vii. 39. For the Holy Ghost was not yet given. The Spirit had ceased since the death of Zechariah and Malachi. It had faintly been manifested on the approach of the Messiah as to Elizabeth and Zacharias; (Luke i. 41, 67.) but the full effusion foretold by Isaiah, and Joel ii. 28, took not place till after the ascension of Christ, and was not yet come.—Grotius. Whitby.

217. John vii. 49. But this people who knoweth not the law are cursed. The Jewish Rabbins, from a high opinion of their own sanctity, taught that none could partake of the resurrection but themselves and their disciples. Others, they said, could only hope to obtain the favour of heaven by services rendered to them, or their disciples; as by giving their daughters to any of them with a large dower, or by traffic procuring for them riches sufficient to keep them free from the distraction of business; so that they might have time to study the law in its full extent. Excepting by this attributed merit, they maintained that all the lower class of the people, who, from being engaged in menial occupations, could not have leisure to study or practise the law, must forfeit their right to future happiness, and be looked upon as accursed.

Pococke.

Page 219. John viii. 18. Bear witness of myself: by my life, doctrines, miracles, prophecies, and assertions that I am the Christ.

Newcome.

220. John viii. 36. If the Son therefore shall make you free. This expression may perhaps have had some allusion to a custom in some of the cities of Greece, and elsewhere, whereby the son and heir had a liberty to adopt brethren, and give them the privileges of the family.—Burder.

223. John viii. 59. Then took they up stones to cast at him. Lewis, in his Origines Hebrææ, says, there was a punishment among the Jews called the Rebels beating, which was inflicted by the mob with their fists, or staves, or stones, without mercy, or sentence of the judges, and that it often proved fatal. Whoever transgressed against a prohibition of the wise men, or of the scribes, that had its foundation in the law, was delivered over to the people to be used in this manner, and was called a son of rebellion.

The frequent taking up of stones by the people to stone our Saviour, and the incursion upon him and upon Stephen for blasphemy, as they would have it, and upon Paul for defiling the temple, as they supposed, were of this nature.

225. John ix. 22. If any man did confess he was Christ, he should be put out of the Synagogue. There were three degrees of excommunication among the Jews, the first is what is called in the New Testament, casting out of the Synagogue, and signifies a separation from all commerce or society; it was in force thirty days, but might be shortened by repentance. If the person persisted in his obstinacy after the thirty days were expired, they excommunicated him again, with the addition of a solemn curse. This is supposed by some to be the same with delivering him over to Satan. The offence was published in the synagogue, and at this time the candles were lighted, and when the proclamation was ended, they were put out, as a sign that the person excommunicated was deprived of the light of heaven; his goods were confiscated; his male children were not admitted to circumcision; and if he died without repentance, by the sentence of the Judge, a stone was cast upon his coffin or bier, to shew that he deserved to be stoned. He was not mourned for with any solemn lamentation. The last degree of excommunication was anathematizing, which was inflicted when the offender had frequently refused to comply with the sentence of the court, and was attended with corporal punishment, and sometimes with banishment or death.—Burder.

226. John ix. 32. Of one that was born blind. This was esteemed by the Jews a peculiar sign of the Messiah, that he should open the eyes of the blind, i. e. of those born blind; and was a miracle never known to be wrought by Moses or any other prophet.—Grotius.

Page 226. John ix. 34. Thou wast altogether born in sins, &c. The Rabbins held that evil affections prevailed in a man before he was born, and also that he might be contaminated by the sins of his parents. See John ix. 2, 3.—Willan.

227. John x. 3—11. From the great attention paid to flocks by the masters to whom they belonged, might originate the mode of styling kings, the shepherds of the people. In this character Christ is described by the prophets, and his application of it to himself shews that he was the person intended. The art of a shepherd in managing his sheep in the East was different from what it is generally among us. We read of his going before, leading, calling his sheep, and their following and knowing his voice; this practice is alluded to by Virgil and Theocritus.

229. Luke x. 18. I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. This destruction of his kingdom is described by a fall from heaven, in a phrase familiar both to sacred and profane writers. So of the king of Babylon, Isaiah xiv. 12, "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer!" And when Pompey was overthrown, he is said by Cicero to have fallen from the stars.

Grotius. Le Clerc.

232. Luke xi. 5. At midnight. It is common in the East to travel by night, on account of the heat of the day.

Luke xi. 12. A Scorpion. The body of a scorpion, especially of the white kind, as its head can scarcely be distinguished, bears a general resemblance to an egg. Bochart has produced testimonies to prove that the scorpions in Judea were about that size.

Macknight.

237. Luke xiv. 13. When thou makest a feast call the poor. Faint traces remain of indiscriminate invitation to oriental feasts. Dr. Pococke speaks of admission of the poor to the tables of the great. The Arabs never set by any thing that is brought to the table; but calling in their neighbours and the poor, finish every thing. An Arab prince will often dine in the street, before his door, and call to all that pass, even beggars, who come and sit down.—Harmer.

241. Luke xv. 15. To feed swine. A most hateful employment to a Jew, by whose law these animals were unclean.—Newcome.

243. Luke xvi. 9. Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness. Mammon was the Syrian god of riches; whence the mammon of unrighteousness was used to signify worldly riches. The sense of the above passage is, By a proper use and distribution of the riches ye possess in this world, endeavour to obtain the favour and approbation of God, that hereafter ye may be received into the mansions of everlasting happiness.—Willan.

245. Luke xvi. 22. Into Abraham's bosom. John is said (John xiii. 23,) to have reclined on the bosom of our Saviour at supper, hence is borrowed the phrase of Abraham's bosom as denoting a state of celestial happiness. Abraham being esteemed the most honourable person, and the father of the Jewish nation, to be in his bosom, signifies, in allusion to the order in which guests were placed at an entertainment, the highest state of felicity next to that of Abraham himself.—Burder.

Luke xvi. 23. Seeth Abraham afar off. Our Saviour adapts this to the popular opinion of the Jews. The Rabbins say that the place of torment and paradise are so situated, that what is done in the one may be seen from the other.—Lightfoot.

Luke xvi. 29. They have Moses and the Prophets, which were read in the synagogue every sabbath day. The Jews had the five books of Moses and eight of the Prophets, namely, Joshua, Judges, Samuel, the Kings, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Isaiah, and the twelve minor Prophets, as one book.—Lightfoot.

Page 251. Luke xviii. 10. To pray. “From the time of Moses down to the establishment of the great synagogue, there were no certain or fixed modes of prayer; but every man prayed for himself and to his own situation, according to his gift of knowledge, wisdom, or eloquence.”—R. Becchai by Willan.

253. John x. 22. The feast of the dedication. This feast was kept in the ninth month, the Jewish year beginning in March. It was instituted to commemorate the cleansing of the temple by Judas Maccabæus, after its pollution by Antiochus Epiphanes. See 1 Maccab. iv. 52—59.—Newcome.

256. John xi. 17. He had lain in the grave four days. It was customary among the Jews to go to the sepulchres of their deceased friends, and visit them for three days. After three days, if the visage began to change, as in that warm climate it generally did, all hopes of a return to life were at an end. About this period, or a little later, putrefaction generally takes place, and therefore Martha had reason to say that her brother's body (which appears by the context to have been laid in the sepulchre the same day on which he died) would, now in the fourth day, have become offensive.—Stackhouse.

259. John xi. 48. The Romans shall come, &c. Because the people will make this man their king, the Romans will send their armies and destroy us.—Newcome.

266. Matt. xix. 24. It is easier for a camel, &c. The Rabbins, as well as Arabs, were accustomed, in describing an impossibility, or a high degree of improbability, to say, it will not happen before a camel or an elephant has crept through the eye of a needle.—Michaelis.

267. Matt. xix. 30. But many that are first shall be last, and the last shall be first. This verse evidently ought to begin this next chapter, as the parable which follows is an illustration of it.

271. Matt. xx. 20. Mark x. 35. These two accounts are no ways contradictory, the mother and children being together, they jointly put up their petitions. Besides, nothing is more common in the style of eastern nations than to say, a man hath done a thing himself, when he hath caused it to be done by another. The sons of Zebedee having therefore got their mother to make this request, are said by Mark to have done it themselves.—Beausobre and Lenfant. See note on page 95.

273. Section 108. Various elucidations or solutions have been given by different commentators, respecting the beginning of this section. A reference to the latter part of the note of section 51. page 137, will point out what may be principally said upon the subject. As this, and the similar circumstance referred to, occur in Matthew, it may not be inapplicable to introduce in addition what Michaelis has said on the subject; premising that it has been a matter of great uncertainty, and is not yet determined, in what language the gospel of St. Matthew was originally written. "If the dialect in which St. Matthew wrote, was the Syriac, this contradiction may be ascribed to the translator. For in Syriac, when a noun is in what is called the status emphaticus, it has the very same orthography in the singular, as it has in the plural number, the difference being merely in the punctuation; and even in the verb the third person plural is sometimes written like the third person singular."—Marsh's Michaelis, vol. iii. 156.

- Page 282. Matt. xxi. 8, 9. These two verses contain the various ceremonies and rejoicing of many of the Jews on the acknowledgment of the Messiah as their king. That the spreading of their garments was usual on this occasion, appears 2 Kings ix. 13, "Then they hastened and took every man his garment, and put it under him (Jehu) at the top of the stairs, and blew with trumpets, saying, Jehu is king;" and the strewing of flowers and branches was not uncommonly used before great men of the east. The word Hosanna, signifying, "Save I beseech thee," was a form of acclamation used by the Jews at their feast of Tabernacles, and on any great or unusual occasion of rejoicing. 1 Maccab. xiii. 51. By these ceremonies, the people acknowledged Jesus to be the Messiah or Shiloh, whom they expected, "He that cometh or was sent of God;" thus also completing the prophecy of Zechariah. See Zech. ix. 9, and Matt. xxi. 5.
283. Luke xix. 40. The stones would immediately cry out. A proverbial expression to denote the moral impossibility, that his kingdom should not be acknowledged by some.—Grotius.
286. John xii. 24. Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die. See 1 Corinth. xv. 36. Unless it die according to appearance; the body of the seed actually wasting, and the germ alone springing up. But perhaps the word is used figuratively, for being consigned to the earth, as a human body is when dead.
Newcome.
296. Matt. xxi. 33. Dugged a wine press. Chardin found wine presses in Persia, which were hollow places in the ground, lined with stone-work.—Harmer.
298. Matt. xxi. 44. And whosoever shall fall on this stone, &c. In this passage Christ is supposed to allude to the different methods of stoning to death then practised. When a criminal was stoned to death, they threw him headlong from an eminence in such a manner as to dash him against some great stone; if this did not dispatch him they threw another upon him, thereby to crush him in pieces.—Lamy.
300. Matt. xxii. 11. Had not on a wedding garment. It was a custom for the bridegroom to furnish, at the marriage feast, garments suitable for his guests.
306. Matt. xxii. 36. The great commandment in the law. They not only wrote this commandment on their phylacteries, and houses and door posts; but they made the last Hebrew letter of the words which began and ended the sentence much larger than usual in their copies of the law.—Hammond.
308. Matt. xxii. 44. Till I make thine enemies thy footstool. Chardin says, "Chairs are never used in Persia (it being their general custom to sit on floors, carpets, or mattresses) but at the coronation of their kings. The king is seated in a chair of gold, set with jewels, three feet high. The chairs which are used by the people in the East, are always so high as to make a footstool necessary. And this proves the propriety of the style of scripture, which always joins the footstool to the throne." Isaiah lxvi. 1. 2 Chron. ix. 18. This passage which is taken from Psalm cx. 1, is strongly expressive of the exaltation of our Lord, when the depression of his enemies is denoted by their becoming his footstool.—Lowth. Newcome.

Page 312. Matt. xxiii. 24. Strain at a gnat, &c. This passage may with more propriety be read, strain out a gnat, &c. It is an allusion to a custom amongst the Jews of straining or filtering their wine, lest they should swallow any small animal forbidden by the law as unclean. It is probable their nicety in this respect might become proverbial for their exactness in small matters.

Matt. xxiii. 27. Ye are like whited sepulchres. Shaw, in his travels, gives a general description of the different sorts of tombs and sepulchres in the East, concluding with this paragraph.—“Now all these, with the very walls of the inclosure, being always kept clean, white-washed, and beautified; they continue to this day to be an excellent comment upon the expression of our Lord, Matt. xxiii. 29, where he mentions the garnishing of the sepulchres, and compares the Scribes and Pharisees to ‘whited sepulchres.’”

315. Luke xxi. 5. How it was adorned with goodly stones. Josephus asserts, that the marble of the temple was so white, that it appeared to one at a distance, like a mountain of snow, and the gilding of several of its external parts which he there mentions, must, when the sun shone upon it, have rendered it a most splendid and beautiful spectacle.—Doddridge.

316. Luke xxi. 6. There shall not be left one stone upon another. This was exactly fulfilled in the time of Titus, who commanded the city and temple to be entirely ruined, and this was put in execution to that degree, that, as Josephus tells us, there was not left so much as any marks of an inhabited city.—Eleazer in his speech to the Jews does affirm, that the city was taken away from the very foundation, and that the temple was dug up.—Maimon tells us also, that after this, the temple was ploughed by Turnus Rufus. Our Saviour's words were exactly fulfilled, as appears by the foregoing testimonies of the Jews themselves.—Kidder.

319. Matt. xxiv. 15. Abomination of desolation. By this term, or the Abomination that maketh desolate, is intended, the Roman armies with their ensigns. As the Roman ensigns, especially the eagle, which was carried at the head of every legion, were objects of worship; they are, according to the usual style of scripture, called an abomination.—Lardner.

The completion of this event, attendant upon the destruction of Jerusalem, not to be foreseen by human skill, was very unlikely to happen. The great care which the Jews took at other times not to defile the holy place, and the small strength it had to defend them long from the Roman arms, were both circumstances, which in all human appearance would have kept them from the rash experiment. And yet, against all probability, they fled to the temple, and there made a last and desperate resistance. Having thus defiled it with their own arms, they made it necessary for the Romans to follow them into the sanctuary, so that they took it by storm, and of consequence caused their military ensigns to be seen standing there.—Pearce.

Page 319. Matt. xxiv. 16. Then let them which be in Judea flee into the mountains. Cestius Gallus besieged Jerusalem some years before he raised the siege. This was a sign to the Christians to flee into the mountains.—They accordingly removed to Pella, beyond Jordan, in the territories of Agrippa, who had continued faithful to the Romans, so that they avoided the desolation that overspread all Judea: and when Titus some months after sat down before the city, there was not one Christian remaining in it.

Grotius. Hammond.

Matt. xxiv. 17. Let him which is on the house top not come down, &c. For an account of the general construction of the houses, see notes on pages 63 and 155. The flat roofs sometimes formed a continued terrace, extending from one end of the city to the other, and terminating at the gates. (1 Sam. ix. 26.) So that our Lord seems to advise them to hasten along the tops of the houses, in order to reach the city gates with greater dispatch.

Hammond.

320. Matt. xxiv. 20. But pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, neither on the sabbath-day. The former part of this verse seems a mere allusion to the severity of the season, the roads then being scarcely passable.—In travelling on the sabbath they might expose themselves to the indignation of the Jews, or be restrained by their own particular observance of it, as the distance allowed for a sabbath day's journey was only two thousand cubits, or about one mile: supposed to be the space between the camp and the tabernacle. See Josh. iii. 4.—Grotius. Whitby.

321. Matt. xxiv. 22. Should no flesh be saved. The violence of the war was such, from the Romans, and from the Zelots within, who killed all that were averse to hostilities, that if it had gone on further against the city, the nation, says Chrysostom, would have been entirely destroyed.—Hammond.

Titus confessed that it was God who deprived the Jews of their fortresses.—Whitby.

Matt. xxiv. 27. For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. From the account by Josephus it may be observed, that the Roman army entered on the east side of it, and carried on their conquests westward, as if not only the extensiveness of the ruin, but the very route which the army would take, was intended by this comparison.

321. Matt. xxiv. 28. For wheresoever the carcase is, there will the eagles be gathered together. This was a proverbial saying, and is here applied in a prophetic sense. The Jewish writers had this maxim among them, that wicked men, while they live, are to be reckoned among the dead. Thus by the word carcase, Christ means the Jewish nation, which was morally and judicially dead. Under the metaphor of eagles, which fly swiftly and seize violently on their prey, conquerors are frequently spoken of in scripture.—See Lament. iv. 19. Hosea viii. 1. When Moses threatens the Jews with the destruction of their nation, in his description, which coincides in the most material parts with their final destruction by the Romans, the destroying army is introduced with this very emblem of an eagle. The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from afar, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle fleeth, a nation whose language thou shalt not understand. Deut. xxviii. 49.

The sense of the prophecy may be thus gathered: wheresoever the wicked Jews are, there will the Roman eagles, (whose principal standard supported an eagle on its summit) the destroying armies, follow them.—Pearce.

Page 324. Matt. xxiv. 41. Two women shall be grinding at the mill. Most families grind their wheat and barley at home, having two portable grindstones for that purpose. The uppermost is turned round by a small handle of wood or iron placed on the edge of it. When the stone is large, or expedition is required, a second person is called to assist. It is usual for the women alone to be concerned in this employ, sitting themselves down over against each other, with the millstones between them.—Shaw.

The fulfilment of the prophecies of our Saviour respecting the destruction of Jerusalem, is amply and minutely treated of by Lardner, as an argument of the truth of Christianity. This work is republished in the 5th vol. of Watson's Theological Tracts, and will amply compensate the reader for his attention to it.

327. Matt. xxv. 4. But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps. Chardin observes, that in many parts of the east, and in particular in the Indies, instead of torches and flambeaux, they carry a pot of oil in one hand, and a lamp full of oily rags in the other. They seldom make use of candles, especially amongst the great; candles casting but little light, and they sitting at a considerable distance from them.—Harmer.

Matt. xxv. 6. And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him. The bridegroom and his friends usually supped with the bride, and then conducted her to his house, late in the evening, by the light of lamps and torches, making great acclamations. The young virgins were they who waited at the house to have every thing ready for the reception of the new married couple, and to attend on the bride.—Willan.

330. Matt. xxv. 33. And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. This seems to allude to the custom in the Sanhedrim, where the Jews placed those to be acquitted on the right, and those to receive sentence of condemnation, on the left hand.—Whitby.

333. Matt. xxvi. 7. And poured it (the ointment) on his head, as he sat at meat. The use of unguents was common at feasts among the Easterns, and also among the Greeks and Romans.—Newcome.

338. Mark xiv. 14. And wheresoever he shall go in, &c. It was the custom at Jerusalem, for the inhabitants to allow the free use of their rooms and furniture to the strangers at the passover, without pay or advantage, except of the skins of the lambs sacrificed.—Le Clerc.

341. John xiii. 10. He that is washed needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit. The words, in their literal sense, allude to the custom of using the bath immediately before attendance on feasts; at which feasts the feet of the guests were first washed.—Pearce. Campbell.

- Page 342. John xiii. 18. He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me. This was a peculiar aggravation in the East, where the rights of hospitality were very sacred, and are so to this day.—Newcome.
344. Matt. xxvi. 23. He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish. In Barbary, and probably in the East, when the food is any liquid substance, after having broken their bread in little bits, they dip their hands and their morsels together into it.—Shaw.
346. John xiii. 34. A new commandment, &c. The new commandment is, to love one another as he had loved them. See John xv. 12, 13. That merely to love one another was not a new commandment, appears from Levit. xix. 18.—Newcome.
351. John xiv. 16. Give you another comforter. Grotius and some others are of opinion, that the Greek word (παρακλητος;) rendered in our translation comforter, is more properly expressed by advocate, or one who undertakes to plead the cause of the accused, and act for them.
363. Matt. xxvi. 30. Had sung an hymn. Newcome in his translation has “used an hymn,” to which is annexed the following explanation. The hymn may have been recited, as the original Greek word (ὕμνησαντες) does not necessarily imply that it was sung. It is said that the Jews repeated six psalms, from the cxiii. to the cxviii. inclusive, three before, and three after taking the paschal supper.
364. Mark xiv. 35. He went forward a little, and fell on the ground. Many instances occur in ancient writers, more particularly in the profane authors, where falling to the ground, or rather throwing themselves upon it, indicates a mind overwhelmed with the deepest distress. This appears to have been the case with our Saviour, who is represented in the preceding verse to have been “exceeding sorrowful, unto death.”
365. Matt. xxvi. 41. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak. Our Lord mildly and benevolently alleges for their infirmity the only extenuation it admitted.—Newcome.
369. Matt. xxvi. 52. All they that take the sword, shall perish with the sword. This prophecy seems to have been verified, whenever Christians have had recourse to arms, in order to defend themselves from persecution: as in the case of the Hussites in Bohemia, and the Huguenots in France.—Priestley.
375. John xviii. 20. I spake openly to the world. It is said in the Mishna, that before any one was punished for a capital crime, proclamation was made before the prisoner by the public cryer, as follows: “Whoever may know any thing concerning his innocence, let him come forward, and declare concerning him.” Now it is plain from the history of the Four Evangelists, that in the trial and condemnation of Jesus, no such rule was observed; (though, according to the account of the Mishna, it must have been in practice at that time;) no proclamation was made for any person to bear witness to the innocence and character of Jesus; nor did any voluntarily step forth to give his attestation to it. And our Saviour seems to refer to such a custom, and to claim the benefit of it, by his answer to the high priest, when asked by him of his disciples, and of his doctrine: “I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret I have said nothing. Why askest thou me? ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold they know what I said." John xviii. 20, 21. This therefore was one remarkable instance of hardship and injustice, among others predicted by the prophet, which our Saviour underwent in his trial and sufferings.

St. Paul likewise, in similar circumstances, standing before the judgment seat of Festus, seems to complain of the same unjust treatment, that no one was called, or would appear to his character. See Acts xxvi. 4, 5. Note on Lowth's Isaiah.

Page 378. Matt. xxvi. 65. The high priest rent his clothes. They who judge a blasphemer, first bid the witness to speak out plainly what he has heard; and when he speaks it, the judges standing upon their feet, rend their garments, and do not sew them up again. Lightfoot.

379. Mark xiv. 65. And to cover his face. Criminals, immediately after sentence of condemnation, had their faces covered or hooded, as if unworthy to enjoy the benefit of the light any longer. In cases of treason, the Roman law (according to which our Saviour was executed) ran thus: "If the sentence is confirmed, let the criminal's hands be bound, let him be veiled or hoodwinked, and hanged on a cursed tree, after having been scourged," &c.—Livy. The custom of veiling condemned criminals was observed likewise among Eastern nations. Esther vii. 8. "As the word went out of the king's mouth, they covered Haman's face."—Willan.

380. John xviii. 28. Went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled, but that they might eat the passover. It appears from Maimonides, that a legal pollution was contracted, even by presence, among the Gentiles, especially on occasions of purity, as the passover. Hence Acts x. 28. xi. 3.—Hammond.

John xviii. 32. Saying of Jesus might be fulfilled. On several occasions our Lord, speaking of his death, had alluded to this particular manner of it, viz. Crucifixion, which was a punishment peculiar to the Romans. Thus he says, (John xii. 32.) "If I be lifted up from the earth." (John iii. 14.) "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so shall the Son of man be lifted up."—Priestley.

387. Matt. xxvii. 26. When he had scourged Jesus. It was customary among the Romans to scourge those who were sentenced to crucifixion.—Newcome.

388. Matt. xxvii. 28. Put on him a scarlet robe. Mark and John say the colour was purple. Instances occur among the ancient writers, where these two colours are confounded. Horace in his second book of satires, has a striking example of it. See Sat. 6, line 102—106. It is also a probable circumstance, that the colour might be of that intermediate shade between purple and scarlet, as to render it difficult for a superficial observer to discriminate with precision.

Matt. xxvii. 30. And they spit upon him. This was an instance of the utmost contempt and detestation. It was ordered by the law of Moses, as a severe punishment, carrying with it a lasting disgrace, Deut. xxv. 9. Among the Medes and Persians it was highly offensive to spit in any one's presence. "They abhor me; they flee far from me; they forbear not to spit in my face." Job xxx. 10. And Jehovah said unto Moses, "If her father had but spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days?" Numb. xii. 14. On which place Sir John Chardin remarks, "That spitting before, or spitting on the ground, in speaking of any one's actions, is through the East, an expression of extreme detestation." Harmer.

And according to Niebuhr, the Arabs entertained the same notions. It so evidently appears that in these countries it has ever been an expression of the utmost detestation, that the learned doubt, whether in the passages above mentioned any thing more is meant than spitting (not in the face, which perhaps the words do not necessarily imply, but only) in the presence of the person affronted. If spitting in a person's presence was such an indignity, how much more spitting upon him? See Luke xviii. 32. Mark x. 34. Note from Lowth's Isaiah.

Page 390. Matt. xxvii. 24. Took water and washed his hands. It was the custom among the ancients when they had shed blood, to wash their hands in water in order to purify themselves.—Whitby.

392. Matt. xxvii. 6. Because it is the price of blood. The Jews and the first Christians esteemed it not lawful for executioners to make any offerings or alms; so by analogy, money by which a life was bought, was not to be put into the treasury.—Hammond.

Acts. 18. Now this man purchased a field. The word in Greek (ἐκτῆσται) signifies was the occasion of purchasing. It is very frequent in sacred as well as in other writings, to represent a man as doing that, which he is only the cause or occasion of another's doing. See Acts ii. 23. John xix. 1. Matt. xxvii. 59, 60.

393. Matt. xxvii. 32. And as they came out, &c. Grotius observes, that in the time of Moses, capital punishment was inflicted out of the camp, Numb. xv. 35; and that the Romans also executed offenders out of their encampments and out of their cities. See Hebrews xiii. 11—13.

John xix. 17. And he bearing his cross. Those who suffered crucifixion among the Romans bare their own cross, (i. e. the transverse piece of wood to which the arms were afterwards fastened) to the place of execution; an act which was considered as part of the infamy.—Grotius.

394. Luke xxiii. 31. If they do these things in a green tree, what will be done in the dry? In many passages of the Old Testament a green or flourishing tree is used as an emblem of prosperity, peace and plenty; a dry withered tree denotes the contrary state. The proper sense of this expression therefore is as follows: "If such outrages be committed, if innocent people be put to death, in a time of general tranquillity, what must be expected in those times of war and desolation which are approaching?" Compare Ezek. xvii. & xix. and xx. 47. Hosea x. 1, 8. xi. 6; and Eccle. vi. 3. Psalms i. 3. lxxx. 10, &c. Job xxix. 19. xviii. 16; and viii. 16.—Willan.

395. Matt. xxvii. 34. They gave him vinegar to drink, mingled with gall. Mark says, wine mingled with myrrh. Several commentators have given elucidations, and reconciled these varying accounts. Their mode of reconciliation is ingenious, yet depending in such a particular manner on the critical nicety of the languages, as may in this place be more properly avoided. Should the biblical reader wish for information, Marsh's Translation of Michaelis' Introduction to the New Testament, vol. 3. page 159; Grotii Annotationes in Libros Evangel. in loc.; Newcome's Notes in the folio edition of his Greek Harmony, page 52; and Beausobre and Lenfant's version of St. Matthew, note on Matt. xxvii. 34. furnish interesting information on the subject.

Page 396. Matt. xxviii. 37, and parallel verses. No two evangelists, you observe, agree in reciting exactly in the same words, the written inscription, which was put over Christ when he was crucified. I admit that there is an unessential verbal difference; and are you certain that there was not a verbal difference in the inscriptions themselves? One was written in Hebrew, another in Greek, another in Latin; and though they had all the same meaning, yet it is probable, that if two men had translated the Hebrew and the Latin into Greek, there would have been a verbal difference in their translations.—Watson.

The same verbal exactness is not necessary in historians whose aim is religious instruction, as in recorders of public inscriptions. It is enough that the Evangelists agree as to the main article, "The King of the Jews," referred to John xix. 21. That their manner is to regard the sense rather than the words, appears from many places; see Ac. x. 4, and 31, and many parallel verses in this Harmony.—Newcome.

399. Matt. xxvii. 44. Mark xv. 32. What is true only of one of the malefactors related by Luke, is attributed to both in the concise relations of Matthew and Mark, the plural being often used in the gospels for the singular. This the Evangelists themselves shew, in some instances. Compare page 179, Matt. xv. 15. and Mark vii. 17. Page 147, Mark v. 31. Luke viii. 45. Page 164, Matt. xiv. 17. Mark vi. 38. Luke ix. 13. John vi. 8, 9. In the following places the plural is used, and the sense shews that one is spoken of: John xi. 8. Luke xx. 21, 39. xxiv. 5. Matt. xv. 1, 12. The Evangelists therefore, when from attention to brevity they avoid particularising, often attribute to many what is said or done by single persons; nor does any striking peculiarity in the case omitted, lead them to deviate from their manner; for instance, the case of Judas. See Matt. xxvi. 8. and the parallel places.
Newcome.

400. Matt. xxvii. 45. The sixth hour. There are two sorts of days; the natural one, which is the space of twenty-four hours from one sunset to another; and the other, called artificial or civil, consisting of twelve hours, from the rising to the setting of the sun. The civil day, that is, the sun's stay above the horizon, was by the Jews divided into four parts, each of which consisted of three hours, that were longer or shorter according to the different seasons of the year. The first was from six o'clock in the morning till nine. And therefore they called the third hour what we call nine o'clock, because three hours were past from sunrising to that time. The second part of the day lasted from nine of the clock till noon. The third from noon to three. This they called the ninth hour of the day, because it actually was the ninth from the morning. The fourth was from three o'clock till six in the evening. They gave the name of hour to each of these four parts, as well as to the hours properly so called.—Beausobre and Lenfant.

Matt. xxvii. 45. There was darkness over all the land. This darkness could not be a regular eclipse of the sun, by the intervention of the new moon, as the passover was always held when the moon was at the full. From the quotations of ancient writers, adduced by Grotius, without specifying the extent of this darkness to any particular district, it evidently appears that it was universal, and could not have been restricted to the kingdom of Judea alone.

Page 400. Matt. xxvii. 46. Eli is Hebrew for my God. Mark xv. 34. Eloi is the Syriac for it.—Newcome.

Matt. xxvii. 46. My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Our Saviour, by citing the beginning of the 22d Psalm, seems to have intended to refer the Jews to the Psalm itself, in which their present conduct and his circumstances are minutely described with a most amazing exactness. The Jewish mode of quoting scripture was by reciting only a few words at the beginning of a paragraph.—Harwood.

401. John xix. 29. Vessel full of vinegar. The soldiers and lower class of people among the Jews, made use of vinegar when mixed with water for a common drink. The Jews of better rank, however, looked on an offer of vinegar to drink as the greatest affront and outrage, as will appear from a remarkable passage in Psalm lxix. 21, 22. "Reproach hath broken my heart and I am full of heaviness; I looked for some to pity but there was none; and for comforters, but I found none. They gave me also gall for my meat, and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink."—Willan. This passage is also highly prophetic.

Matt. xxvii. 48. Mark xv. 36. Put it on a reed. John xix. 29. Put it upon hyssop. The Greek word καλαμος, properly signifies a reed; but it is also used to denote the stem and branches of such trees and plants as produce any kind of wood.—The καλαμος here spoken of, was a stick of hyssop, of which there is one kind in Judea, that shoots forth boughs or stalks strong enough for the use it is put to here.—Beausobre and Lenfant.

402. Matt. xxvii. 51. The veil of the temple. The veil of the temple was a curtain which separated the sanctuary from the holy of holies, within which the high-priest only was allowed to enter.—Exod. xxvi. 31. Numb. xviii. 7; and that but once a year, on the great day of expiation or atonement. Exod. xxx. 10.

406. John xix. 39. Brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes about an hundred pound weight. It appears from Josephus, that great quantities of spices were used by the Jews for embalming a dead body, when they intended to shew marks of respect to the deceased. Eighty pounds of spices were used at the funeral of Gamaliel the elder.—Pearce.

Josephus likewise says, that in the funeral procession of king Herod were five hundred spice bearers. See likewise 2 Chron. xvi. 14.

410. Matt. xxviii. 1, and parallel verses. The slight variation of the evangelists in regard to the time of the women's coming to the sepulchre, requires a little explanation. To enter minutely into it, embraces an extent of critical enquiry which would be unsatisfactory to the generality of readers. It may be sufficient to say, that similar phrases in the Greek language, with similar application, occur in Herodotus, Lib. 3. c. 85, 86, 87, 88. Should this information be thought deficient, clear and satisfactory solutions may be seen in Chandler's Witnesses of the Resurrection of Christ re-examined, page 65. In West's Observations on the Resurrection, section 5th. Newcome's folio Harmony, Notes; page 54. In Kidder's Demonstration of the Messiah, 8vo. vol. 3, page 113.

Page 410. John xx. 1. John mentions Mary Magdalene alone as coming to the sepulchre, the other evangelists comprehend others. Thus Newcome explains it. St. John mentions Mary Magdalene alone because he meant to state at large, her conduct in this transaction, and Jesus's appearance to her. St. Mark refers you to this appearance, ch. xvi. 9; and stating it fully was a very proper topic in St. John's supplementary history. But St. John's silence about those who accompanied Mary Magdalene to the sepulchre, does not exclude them. Thus, Luke xxiv. 12, Peter only is mentioned, and yet John accompanied him, John xx. 3. In like manner the mention of Mary Magdalene, and of the other Mary, by St. Matthew, ch. xxviii. 1, and of these two together with Salome, by St. Mark, ch. xvi. 1, is perfectly consistent with Luke, ch. xxiv. 1, 10. However, St. John intimates that Mary Magdalene had attendants. For her words to Peter and John were, "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him," ch. xx. 2.—Newcome.

411. Mark xvi. 5. A young man sitting on the right side. Luke xxiv. 4. Two men stood by them. Benson's mode of accounting for this is very suitable to the manner of the evangelists. "St. Matthew and St. Mark take notice only of the angel who spake to the women. St. Luke says that there was another in company with him, which the former evangelists do not contradict."—These angels are called men by St. Luke, and one of them is called a young man by St. Mark, from the shape which they assumed. Compare Luke xxiv. 23. Acts i. 10. See also Judges xiii. 16. Gen. xix. 1, &c.

Though in the established version, Luke xxiv. 4, is rendered "two men stood by them," the original word (επιστησαν) does not necessarily import a posture, but may be rendered "appeared to them," or "suddenly appeared to them." The same verb having this similar application in Luke ii. 9. Acts xxiii. 11, and is attributed to it by II. Stephens.—Newcome, &c.

412. In Luke xxiv. 5, the verb "they said" occurs plurally, in the other evangelists singularly. This circumstance is already explained by note on page 399, where a similar passage is noticed.

422. The disciples, who collectively had been frequently denominated the Twelve, after the death of Judas, had the appellation of the Eleven. This is applied by Luke xxiv. 33, and Mark xvi. 14, as their general title, though at that time ten only were present, Thomas (see John xx. 24.) not being with them. Paul in the 1st Cor. xv. 5, and John xx. 24, speak of them under the former appellation of the Twelve, though Judas being dead and Thomas then absent, ten only can be enumerated. This application of the two numbers may appear contradictory, yet as it was not unfrequent, but even general, among writers prior to and about that age, to adopt the same modes of expression, (as the following extract obviously shews) no contradiction can be eventually attached to the sacred writers.

"Grotius hath observed that Xenophon calls the governors of Athens by the name of the thirty, when Theramenes, one of them, was dead; and that in the book of Judges, the seventy sons of Gideon are said to be slain, whilst Jotham, one of them, was alive. I add, that Livy calls by the name of Decemviri, or, The ten men, only five of them who had the joint command of the Roman army in Tusculum (lib. 3. c. 43.); and a little after (lib. 3. c. 51.) he gives the same name to three of them who had the joint command of the army against the Sabines; and even (c. 49. line 20.) to those two of them who were left at Rome to take care of the city."—Chandler.

427. John xxi. 7. For he was naked. This phrase does not denote absolute nakedness, but is often applied to those who are without an upper garment. Nudus (a Latin word of the same signification) is used in the same manner. So Virgil (Georg. i. 299.) gives this order to the husbandman—Nudus ara, sere nudus.—Harwood.

429. John xxi. 21. If I will that he tarry till I come. History informs us that St. John lived long after the destruction of Jerusalem, (to which the words, "till I come," refer. See Matt. xxiv. 3—44. xvi. 28, &c.) and Christ had given the intimation that John should see that event, for he once said to his disciples, "There be some standing here who shall not taste of death till they see the son of man coming in his kingdom;" Luke ix. 27. And afterwards, when Peter was desirous to know what should befall John, Christ replied, "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?"—Jortin.

John survived to the reign of Trajan: he died an hundred years after the birth of our Lord, consequently thirty years after the "coming of Christ," (the destruction of Jerusalem taking place A. D. 70.)—Irenæus.

In detailing the events subsequent to the crucifixion, the reader may readily observe that much matter is recorded in a small compass, and that though each evangelist has given his particular and connected narration, much new matter is introduced in one, unnoticed in the others. To frame a general narrative by a combination of the whole, and to dispose the various circumstances in the order they are supposed to have occurred, have been objects of difficulty to harmonists. On these accounts the following concise summary of the events, in the order they may rationally be supposed to have happened, is introduced, as arranged by Benson, and afterwards adopted by Newcome.

On the morning of the first day of the week Jesus rises from the dead; a great earthquake happens about the time of his resurrection; and an angel appears, who rolls away the stone that closed the mouth of the sepulchre, sits upon it, and strikes the keepers with great fear; thus causing them to remove to such a distance, as to remain unnoticed by the women and others hereafter. (Matt. xxviii. 2—4.) After his resurrection, many bodies of the saints arise from their graves, and are seen by many in Jerusalem. (Matt. xxvii. 52, 53.) Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, Salome, Joanna, and other women (Mark xvi. 1. Luke xxiv. 1. John xx. 1.) go very early to the sepulchre, intending to embalm the body of Jesus, (having bought spices the preceding evening for that purpose.) In their way they consult about removing the stone from the door of the sepulchre. Perceiving it already taken away, they enter into the sepulchre, yet find not the body of the Lord Jesus. (Mark xvi. 3—5. Luke xxiv. 2, 3. John xx. 1.) Mary Magdalene hastily returning to Jerusalem, relates to Peter and John that they had taken the Lord out of the sepulchre. (John xx. 2.) The other women remaining in the sepulchre, two angels appear unto them, and one of them requests the women to inform the disciples, and Peter in particular, that Jesus was risen, &c. (Matt. xxviii. 5—7. Mark xvi. 4—7. Luke xxiv. 4—8.) The women return from the sepulchre, relate these things to the apostles, and are discredited. (Matt. xxviii. 8. Mark xvi. 8. Luke xxiv. 8—11.) Peter and John having heard Mary Magdalene's report of his having been taken away, and the women's, of his having risen, run to the sepulchre, and find the body removed, according to their information, and wondering at what was come to pass, return home. (Luke xxiv. 12. John xx. 3—10.) The resurrection having been stated to the disciples at Jerusalem, at this period (Luke xxiv. 22—24.) Cleophas and his companion leave their brethren to go to Emmaus. Mary Magdalene goes again to the sepulchre, tarries there after the apostles, (John xx. 11.) and converses with the two angels, who had before appeared to the women. Turning herself back, she perceives Jesus, who gradually makes himself known unto her; she consequently hastens to the city, and announces this his first appearance to the disciples, but they believe not. (Mark xvi. 9—11. John xx. 11—18.) The other women having told the disciples of his resurrection, continue in the city, whilst Peter and John visit, and Mary Magdalene revisits, the sepulchre: they then go back again, and upon finding it deserted, return towards Jerusalem. On their way Jesus meets and requests them to direct his disciples to depart into Galilee. (Matt. xxviii. 9, 10.) This is his second appearance. The guards about this time leave the neighbourhood of the sepulchre, and inform the Jewish rulers of what had occurred within their knowledge. (Matt. xxviii. 11—15.) According to Paul, (1 Corinth. xv. 5.) the third appearance is to Cephas; and the fourth, to the two who some time prior to this, left their brethren to proceed to Emmaus; who, immediately returning to Jerusalem, relate it to the other disciples, and are not credited. (Mark xvi. 12, 13. Luke xxiv. 13—36.) The last time of his being seen on the day of his resurrection, being the fifth, was by the apostles as they sat at meat, in the absence of Thomas, (Paul 1 Corinth. xv. 5. Mark xvi. 14—18. Luke xxiv. 36—49. John xx. 19—28.) This concludes the great and glorious transactions of the important day on which Jesus rose from the dead. About the eighth day after his resurrection, he again the sixth time appears to the disciples, when Thomas was present. (John xx. 24—29.) His seventh appearance occurs between the eighth and the fortieth day, at the sea of Tiberias, to his disciples, (Matt. xxviii. 16. John xxi. 1—24.) and his eighth, to them upon the mountain in Galilee. (Matt. xxviii. 16—20.) Paul (1 Corinth. xv. 6.) relates his having been seen of above five hundred brethren at once, many of whom, at the time of his writing this epistle, are living witnesses to this the ninth appearance. His tenth is to James; and his final appearance, being the eleventh, is to the apostles, on the ascension. (1 Corinth. xv. 7. Acts i. 3—12. Mark xvi. 19, 20. Luke xxiv. 50—53.)

434. John xxi. 25. And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. The construction of this verse in our present translation, is fully justified, in adducing from the Old Testament expressions of equal latitude, (See Exod. iii. 8. Judges vii. 12. 1 Kings x. 27, &c.) and which are not unusual in the magnificent luxuriance of an oriental style, though rarely occurring in the simple artless narrations of the apostles.

This text may, nevertheless, be considered in a sense somewhat different. The same Evangelist (John) frequently uses the word world, in a general sense, to denote its inhabitants, ch. viii. 26, and in other places, as ch. xv. 18, expressive of wicked and unbelieving men. The Greek word ( $\chi\omega\rho\epsilon\omega$ ) here translated contain, is not only used in that sense, but when applied to the mind, denotes the reception and understanding of any thing, and in Matt. xix. 11, 12, and Philem. 15, is rendered by this construction. By adopting these observations, the text reads to this purport, "I am persuaded the world itself would not receive the books that should be written." (Doddridge's translation.)—Whitby, Chandler, Harwood, with many others, have supported this construction, under the idea of greater propriety of application. In addition to whose opinion, it may be observed, that in this day, under the more extended diffusion of evangelical truth, the same disposition of undervaluing, and in no small degree, rejecting these sacred records, seems lamentably prevalent, and bears strong testimony to the justness of John's assertion.
